SURRENDER OF PRETORIA.

Despatches during the night brought good news, and there is little doubt the South African war is over. Kruger has fled, and the surrender of Johannesburg was quickly followed by that of Pretoria. Everybody rejoices at the prospects of peace and an end to bloodshed.

One of those pleasant little incidents which happen all too seldom in the political history of the Dominion, occurred on Tuesday afternoon of last week when the House of Commons, laying aside all party differences for the moment, united in tendering cordial congratulations to Sir Charles Tupper on the occasion of his completing the 45th year of his public life. The veteran leader's desk in the Chamber was decorated with a huge bouquet of roses and ferns, and as he entered the House he was greeted with rounds of applause from both sides. He acknowledged this token of personal regard in a few well-chosen remarks, in which he gave a brief review of his public career, concluding with a humorous apology for "lagging superfluous upon the stage" of public life so long adding, "I can only say that it is not my desire that that period should be very much longer continued, but I am afraid that I shall have to remain at all events until the electorate of the country shall have decided which of the two great parties, that are now contending for power, is to enjoy it during the period to come." The Premier followed with graceful congratulations on behalf, not only of the Government, but of the whole Canadian people, remarking that he was proud and glad to bear testimony to the public career of his distinguished opponent.

Rumors of the near approach of a general election have been revived very noticeably during the past week. There does not appear to be any reason for this, other than the natural activity in both political camps which is the necessary outcome of the fact that the extreme legal limit of the life of this Parliament will be reached during the next twelve months, and no Parliament since Confederation has run the full term of its natural life, though the last came within a few days of it. It is fully recognized by all practical politicians that the electorate is very evenly divided, and the fate of parties often depends upon the degree of perfection to which its practical organization has attained. Both parties, therefore, are anxious that the organization be made as perfect as possible for their side. Every prediction of the improvement which Liberals said a change would bring about has been verified far beyond the most sanguine expectations of the Government's warmest supporter, and if the calm, deliberate judgment which every man seeks to apply to the management of his own private affairs is allowed to influence his action at the ballot box the outcome of the next general election is a foregone conclusion.

The tangible benefits which will result to Canada as an outcome of the timely aid she is now rendering to the empire are becoming more apparent all the time. Not only is her trade with the old country increasing with unprecedented rapidity, and capital is being attracted to the development of her resources in ever growing volume, but greater attention is being given to the splendid opportunities offered in the Dominion to the surplus population of the old land to make prosperous homes for themselves here. That this is the direct fruit of our imperialism is abundantly evident by articles constantly appearing in the English press.

The Council then resolved itself into a Court of Revision, when the different appeals against the assessment roll for the current year were taken up. The Bell Telephone Co. and the Metropolitan Railway Co., represented by Mr. Love and Mr. Moyes, respectively, worked off considerable eloquence in their attempt to prove that they were assessed too high, but each failed to melt the adamant heart of the Court. Charles McArthur was equally eloquent and unsuccessful.

The middle 50 acres of lot 58, con. 1, was assessed at $1,600 to Mr. Copson, who has bought it, and the assessment the previous owner, was reduced to $5,400.

The following persons were released from dog tax:—W. Maw, T. Gallagher, H. Fry, C. Morning, F. Trent, A. Wisner, H. McCutcheon, J. J. Hulse, S. Farren, W. Watson, A. Stogdale, J. Coulter, and R. Gellatly.

The Court then adjourned to meet at Schomberg on June 30th, when an appeal that was laid over will be taken up.

The Council adjourned to meet at McBride's Hotel on Wednesday, May 30th, at 2 p. m.
