FOUR MILLIONS PROFIT.

A few shrewd Canadians, it is said, made a few millions of dollars clear profit out of building a small railway, of which most Canadians have never heard. The railway in question was the "Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railway," which in 1887 received grants from the Dominion Government. The land granted to this Company was sold for over $3,500,000, and from the sale of bonds and cash subsidies the Company got $3,000,000 more, making a total of $6,500,000. The total cost of the road is estimated to have been not more than $2,500,000, leaving a net profit to the promoters of the road of four millions. The C.P.R. supplied the terminals and the rolling stock and leased the road without a rental, thus taking the railway off the hands of the original owners. This is one of the many railway stories which Mr. R. L. Richardson, M. P., is now telling in The Canadian Magazine in a series of four articles. Mr. Richardson believes in Government ownership of railways, and is writing these articles in order to lay his views before the people of Canada.

Our Ottawa Letter.

Speaking in Amherst, N. S., a few days ago, Sir Charles Tupper is reported to have said: "No man has been able to put his hand on one thing that the Liberals have done that has increased one jot or tittle the trade of Canada." And again, "Show me one single act initiated and carried out since this Government came into power that has contributed to the prosperity of the country, and I will apologize."

Let us glance for a moment at the record and then leave the intelligent elector to judge for himself as between that record and Sir Charles Tupper's statement.

First as to transportation—a matter which all will agree is of primary importance to trade. The fourteen foot canal system from the lakes to Montreal, inaugurated by Alexander Mackenzie, but carried forward with inexcusable dilatoriness and at great annual loss to Canadian commerce during the eighteen years of Tory rule, was completed within three years and ocean boats are now trading between Liverpool and the upper lake ports without breaking cargo.

It has made provision for the necessary improvements and enlargements of the harbor facilities at Montreal, the sea-board terminus of the canal system. It has made a contract with a strong transportation syndicate by which grain elevators are being constructed at Montreal and Port Colborne, a fleet of modern grain carriers put on the lakes, and a vastly greater volume of the products of the west carried through Canadian channels.

It has developed and improved the system of cold storage for Canadian shipments to British and foreign markets and perfected cold storage facilities at the Paris exhibition which enabled the Dominion to make an exhibit of her grain, fruit and vegetables which has been a revelation to Europe and must give a tremendous impetus to the future trade in these natural products.

It has extended the Intercolonial Railway from Point Levis to Montreal, has granted subsidies to railways from point to point across the continent which will in course of time form links in a new, complete chain of railway communication from the Atlantic to the Pacific and open up millions of acres of magnificent agricultural, mining and lumber country; a competing line which will share the rapidly growing commerce of the west with the C.P.R. and prevent that vast country from ever again suffering from railway monopolies. In granting subsidies to the railways, conditions have been attached which guarantee substantial returns to the country for the money expended; unconditional grants of public moneys to private speculators has, under the present Government, become a thing of the past.

It has removed artificial fetters upon the trade of the country by adjusting the tariff to such an extent that the consumer has paid at least $13,000,000 less for the goods he has used in the last four years than he would have paid for the same goods under the Tory tariff.

It has, in connection with the Crow's Nest Charter, secured reductions in grain rates for the Western farmer and other freight concessions from the C.P.R. equal to a saving annually of not less than $800,000, and has taken the power to regulate freight rates on all traffic originating on the Crow's Nest Road or destined for points on the Crow's Nest system, and made it impossible for the Canadian Pacific to increase rates on many staple articles beyond the prices fixed in that agreement.

It has compelled the railways to abandon discriminating rates which were seriously injuring Canadian trade to the advantage of foreign competitors.

It has improved and energized the Canadian immigration agencies in the United States, in the British Isles and on the continent of Europe, while its policy for opening up the country and settling the west, has immensely increased the home market and developed domestic trade.

It has done so much to develop the magnificent mining district of the Kootenay, that it has practically created a rich and new market in that section, while the progressive and far seeing policy adopted in the opening up of the Yukon has created another valuable market there, the benefits of which would have been held exclusively by Canadian traders, but for the fatuous partisanship of the Tory Senate in preventing the construction of an all-Canadian route to Dawson City.

Cheap and ample postal facilities are an immense impetus to the development of trade, and within two years of its accession to power this Government cut down both the domestic and foreign postal rates to a figure which has been declared impossible by the present Postmaster General's immediate predecessor.

It has removed the elevator grievance in Manitoba and the Territories, thereby greatly improving the facilities for handling the vast grain trade of the west.

It has guaranteed Canada's share of the cost of constructing the Pacific cable, thereby facilitating trade relations with the federated Australian colonies.

It has improved the trade relations between Canada and Great Britain and between Canada and the United States to such an extent that the commerce of the Dominion is already nearly double what it was four years ago.

It has secured such modifications of the quarantine regulations between Canada and the United States that the export trade of cattle from the Dominion to the Republic has increased hundreds of thousands of dollars.

These are a few of the "things that the Liberals have done that have increased the trade of Canada"; these are some of the "acts initiated and carried out since this Government came into power that have contributed to the prosperity of the country."

Surely it is now in order for Sir Charles Tupper to apologize.
