A DOUBLE ACCIDENT. Mr. H. B. Mr. Schmidt was returning home from the picnic at Newton Brook in a single rig when he heard a party driving behind him on Yonge Street at a furious rate. He kept his horse as near to the ditch as possible, but the evening being very dark the men coming behind ran into him, upsetting his buggy and throwing him into the ditch. The rig was only slightly damaged and Mr. Schmidt received several bruises, but none of a serious nature. Naturally his horse ran away, and overtaking a couple of fellows on Morgan's hill ran into them and smashed their buggy badly after throwing them into the ditch. The party that was the cause of all the trouble never stopped to enquire as to Mr. Schmidt's injuries, and are yet unknown.

(CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE) classes of producers as well as the consumers by granting a preference to British goods. He quoted from Mr. Chamberlain and other authorities to show the fallacy of Sir Charles Tupper's contention that Britain was prepared to give us a preference in her markets in return.

THE PROHIBITION QUESTION. The speaker took up the prohibition question. He had, he said, fought for prohibition for many years. Personally he believed it would be a grand thing for Canada. The Liberals had promised a plebiscite of the Dominion, but had never promised prohibition unless the plebiscite justified it. He had had high hopes of the result of that vote; he had gone about the country advocating prohibition, and the result of the vote had been a very great disappointment to him, as well as to all sincere prohibitionists. A small vote was polled, divided almost equally. It would not have been right for a Government to introduce a prohibitory measure on such a showing, and no Parliament would have supported it. The proof of this lay in the fact that, immediately after the vote, many prohibitionists declared that prohibition was impossible, and it was only some time after that the agitation again arose. A Government would have been recreant in its duty to the country and to the temperance people themselves if it had attempted to pass a law which there was no hope of enforcing. He, personally, represented a strong temperance constituency, and he was prepared to face his constituents on this issue without fear of the result. He was frequently cheered as he made point after point during the hour and a quarter which his address consumed in delivery.

Mr. N. W. Rowell, who was introduced as the young giant that was to redeem East York, made a brief address, congratulating the Liberals of West York upon the encouraging prospects, and was followed by Dr. Spence and Mr. Hugh MacMath.
