"WHAT ABOUT TARTE?"

During the recent contest in the Dominion elections there was a section of people who seemed not to care to hear about the actions of the Government during the past four years, or what the ministers were likely to do in the future. The only question which they seemed to have any interest in was "What about Tarte." The question has been satisfactorily answered from many platforms, but one of the best things we have seen is taken from a speech delivered by Mr. Andrew Pattullo, M. P. P. The Dufferin Advertiser quotes him as follows:

"Mr. Pattullo told why those Tories disliked Mr. Tarte, and made a vigorous defense of the Minister of Public Works. In spite of all this, said he, when we show what the Laurier Government has done for the country, we are met with the cry, 'What about Tarte?' When we show that labor is plenty and wages good, the answer is, 'What about Tarte?' When we prove that the policy of the Liberals has made the manufacturers and the business men and the farmers prosperous, there is the old refrain, 'What about Tarte?'"

Dropping his voice to very solemn tones, Mr. Pattullo went on to say that he supposed it would be so until the end of time.

"Even at the last great day, when all things here shall dissolve, and the elements melt with fervent heat, when the last trump shall sound, and the politicians of the world be called together to receive their final sentence, even on that solemn night, away off in a far corner, there will be some restless, miserable little individual who will shake the ashes from his hair, kick the coals about his feet, and interrupt the proceedings by groaning, 'What about Tarte?'"

Mr. Pattullo, it is said, had no further questions asked him after the above little burst of eloquence.

THEN AND NOW.

The Globe of Monday points out that for sending the Canadian contingents to take part in a foreign war there was only one precedent. This was in 1885 when Great Britain had on her hands an ugly conflict with hordes of fanatics in Egypt. At that time the offer of a contingent fully equipped was received and accepted from New South Wales. The British Government communicated to Canada on the same lines, but the answer was of the most discouraging description. They were told that the Canadian Government was "ready to sanction recruiting by Canada for service in Egypt or elsewhere," but that the whole expense must be borne by the home Government. On those terms the contingent was not accepted. If Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government had taken this incident as a precedent no contingent would have been sent to South Africa. The refusal in 1885 was under a Conservative Government led by Sir John Macdonald, and in that case there was no charge of disloyalty.

The general interest that is now being taken by the farmers of Ontario in the question of poultry raising is due largely to the very practical methods that have been adopted by the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa and the Ontario Government to prove to the agriculturists of the country that there is big money to be made in this particular line. Heretofore the farmer has looked upon the hen with contempt, and left it to scratch for a living about the barnyard. He took no care to procure the most profitable breed of fowl and consequently in the past has derived comparatively little profit therefrom. But the Poultry Department of the Experimental Farm is doing a great deal to convince the farmer that by securing a proper kind of bird and keeping them on a large scale, the very best financial results may be obtained. The faith that the Government has in this industry is clearly illustrated in the appointment of sixty lecturers to tour Ontario for the purpose of instructing the farmers on the question of poultry raising and to teach them the best methods of dressing their birds for the British markets. In addition to this splendid effort, Mr. A. G. Gilbert, the Superintendent of the Poultry Section of the Experimental Farm is writing a series of articles on the subject, the first of which appears elsewhere in this paper.

Mr. J. W. Garvin of Toronto, writing in The Mail of Monday, says that "the leadership of Sir Charles Tupper during the last four years has been remarkably astute and brilliant, and that no blame can fairly be laid on his shoulders for the party's defeat." Mr. Garvin then states that seats should be found for Hugh John Macdonald and George E. Foster, the former to become leader of the Opposition, the latter as first lieutenant. Speaking of Hugh John Macdonald Mr. Garvin says:—"The party's love for the father has fallen like a mantle upon the shoulders of the son."

In an interview given to the press after his defeat in Brandon, Mr. Hugh John Macdonald, referring to prohibitionists, said:—"The trouble is that prohibitionists vote with their political party, and the liquor men, both Conservative and Liberal, vote and work against the party which favors prohibition. In future the prohibitionists may thank themselves if neither of the great political parties consent to take up their cause." There are doubtless exceptional cases, but in a general way Mr. Macdonald's statement is correct.

Give It A Little Oil.

An engineer on a locomotive oils his engine several times every day—and the engine "rests" half of every day. Your watch runs day and night continuously; but when did you have it oiled? Are the delicate pivots grinding away on dry jewels to their destruction? Are watches so cheap that you can afford to have yours lose all its good timekeeping virtue by neglect? Bring your watch to me before the injury goes any further. There may be excuse for its poor performance of late. I will examine it, and congratulate you if it needs no attention, and if it does, you shall pay for no more than is necessary to restore it to perfect health
