RICHMOND HILL, October 3, 1901

SUSPENDED AND REPROVED.

The investigation of the charges preferred against the two clergymen, Messrs. Sanderson and McAmmond, in the district of Smith's Falls, has been held. The committee of trial suspended the former until Conference meets next June, and the latter was reproved by the chairman. It is quite possible that the accused were not on a tour of wickedness in the city of Syracuse, but to register at a hotel under assumed names certainly indicated a serious lack of becoming gravity on their part, and was a reproach to the church. The Bible says, "Forgive that ye may be forgiven." In this case it is to say the least difficult to forget the part the two clergymen have taken in the deplorable affair. They may have been innocent of evil intentions, but for one of them to acknowledge that he took from the hands of strangers late at night candies that stupefied him, is enough to create suspicion, and showed a want of dignity on the part of a minister of the gospel.

A correspondent in last Saturday's Globe writes to say that the reproof is unnecessarily severe, and that he does not see that registering under assumed names savors of immorality. We admire the correspondent's spirit of charity, but regret that those who should show a good example, not only in morals but in common sense, allowed themselves to be placed in such an awkward situation.

Sincere regret is felt in the serious illness of Hon. N. C. Wallace, M. P. for West York. Three physicians met in consultation at the family residence in Woodbridge on Monday, and although there is a hope that immediate danger does not exist, it is generally believed he is in a very weak condition. Mr. Wallace has for many years worked beyond his strength, so that peace and quiet and rest from his labors seem now to be absolutely necessary. A wide circle of friends will hope to learn of his speedy recovery and a return to his old-time good health.

Ontario Paving Brick Co., $3.45; charges, 70 cents, 4 15
Jos. Blanchard, work on sidewalks, 1 25
Mr. Hill moved, seconded by Mr. Fury, that the treasurer do pay the foregoing accounts.—Carried.
A communication dated 6th August, from the clerk of the municipality of Beaverton, was read.
A printed circular dated 1st June, from the Attorney-General, together with a copy of "An Act to Amend the Assessment Act," were laid before the council.
The clerk is instructed to write the clerk of Beaverton and say that this council regrets that it cannot comply with the request contained in his communication.
The council adjourned.
