FIRST HOCKEY MATCH.

The hockey match in the rink Monday night between Aurora and the home team was interesting throughout. The play was fast and clean, and the result was in doubt to the end of the match. Mr. W. Clifford was referee, and gave the score at the close 8 to 7 in favor of Richmond Hill. There was a good attendance.

CORRECTION.

In giving an account in last issue of Rev. J. A. Grant's presentation in Thornhill, we incorrectly stated that the address was presented by the members and adherents of the Methodist Church. A RAILWAY CALAMITY IN 1857.

The recent fatal accident on the Grand Trunk Railway, involving the death of 23 passengers and injuries to many others, brings to mind the fearful accident on the Great Western Railway of Canada, by the breaking down of the Desjardins Canal bridge on the 12th of March, 1857, when 63 passengers lost their lives.

THE WAR OF 1812.

The unjustness in the war of 1812 is well explained by Dr. James Hannay in his first installment of his history of that great struggle which appears in the January Canadian Magazine. He points out that before the news of the declaration of war had travelled from Washington to London the objectionable Orders-in-Council concerning the Right of Search had been withdrawn. Thus the only acknowledged reason for the war was removed before a blow was struck. There was an armistice on receipt of the news, but United States would not agree to stop the war. Napoleon was preparing to invade Russia, Great Britain's hands were full of war. Hence the United States considered, it an excellent moment to strike a blow at England—the old mother who was so keenly hated—and at the same time gain possession of Canada. President Madison was coerced by his friends, who declared he only could secure a second term by carrying on the war. He yielded against the dictates of his better judgment. Dr. Hannay's narrative is clear and spirited, and is probably the best account of the struggle yet published. Future installments will be eagerly awaited.

A FAMILIAR FACE GONE.

After an illness, which confined him to his house for about a month Charles Morrison died Tuesday morning. The face of deceased, generally known as "Gus," had been familiar here for a number of years past, and he will be missed in many ways. He generally lighted the fires for the fire brigade and the band, attended the door on court days, and was useful in doing many little jobs, not requiring too much labor. He was of a happy, genial nature, and enjoyed the many jokes which were good naturedly passed at his expense. Deceased leaves a widow and one son.
