A Truly National Exhibition

A quarter of a million dollars has been spent in new buildings, and re-decorating and removing old ones, on the Dominion Exhibition Grounds, Toronto. The Executive now boldly declare that the Exhibition property is the very finest in America, and they challenge comparison. All these buildings, which embrace between 40 and 50 acres of floor space, are full to overflowing with the industrial and agricultural products of the whole of Canada. There will be no fewer than 9,000 animals on view at the one time; something which the Dominion Exhibition authorities boast no other fair in the world can show.

A unique feature is also the Process Building, in which between 30 and 40 different industries will be exhibited in active operation. Although the Fair is called the Dominion Exhibition it is really an Imperial Exhibition, for so exalted a personage as His Majesty the King has sent a number of exhibits. Among them are the presents received by the late Queen Victoria at the time of her Jubilee in 1887, and the Diamond Jubilee in 1897. These gifts are from all parts of the world and are valued at several million pounds. In addition His Majesty is sending some treasures presented to him during his tour in India in 1875 and 76. These comprise saddlery and many trophies of the chase. The King has further sent a number of pictures from his palaces in Sandringham, London and Edinburgh. H. R. H. the Duchess of Argyll (Princess Louise) is sending some of her paintings, and the Dowager Marchioness of Dufferin is forwarding many presents received by herself and her late husband during their residence in India. These comprise some of the most precious gems in the world, and a lot of articles of rare value presented to his late Lordship by King Theobald of Burmah when he was yet on the throne.

As well as these material articles, an exhibit of live stock will include animals bred on the King's estate at Sandringham, Lord Rosebay's palace at Mentmore, and Herefords bred by the late Queen Victoria. All the wealthy men of Canada have contributed loans of pictures or of prize animals bred on their respective farms.

Death and Burial

The newspapers of Lowell, Mass., contain long and touching accounts of the death and funeral of Mr. John A. Storey, a former highly-esteemed citizen of this place. We clip the following paragraphs from the Courier-Citizen, showing that deceased was honored and respected in the city where he has long made his home, as he was in his native village:—

"After suffering from poor health for a period of eight months or more, Mr. John A. Storey, one of Lowell's best known business men, yesterday afternoon (August 21) passed away at his home, 684 Westford street.

"The cause of death was primarily typhoid fever, and this in its latter stages tended to weaken the vital organs so that heart trouble finally claimed Mr. Storey as its victim. Although of a vigorous and well proportioned frame, and consequently the type of a man who was the perfect picture of health, the disease had gained such supremacy over him physically, that recently he lost considerable in weight, and his physician was unable to do anything in his behalf.

"Mr. Storey first established himself in this city in 1889, when he opened the New York Cloak and Suit store with headquarters in John street. He very soon attracted the attention of the business men of this city, because from the first he displayed his progressive methods and demonstrated his integrity and ability. His business grew and by hard work he was able to accomplish the success which he coveted, so that his large store proved a fine investment. He made additions both in stock and facilities and before he sold out a few months ago, he was the owner of one of the best equipped cloak and suit establishments in Lowell. Poor health made it a physical impossibility longer to give his whole attention to the details of management and he made an offer to his brother, C. B. Storey of Brockton, which the latter accepted. C. B. Storey has had the ownership of the place since last July, also giving his time in part to the running of another branch of the business in Brockton.

"There is a large circle of business and personal friends of the deceased who are saddened at the loss of one of their number. Mr. Storey was affable and happy in all his life, both on the street, in his office, and among his friends, and his personality made him a man whose acquaintance was sought. He had established one of the prettiest homes in the Highlands at Tyler Park. Of his immediate family, he is survived by his wife and two children, John A. Storey, jr., aged 4 years, and Marion Storey aged 3 years.

"The funeral took place at his residence Monday afternoon. There was a large attendance of neighbors and acquaintances including delegations from the Highland Club, the Yorick Club and the Board of Trade. Many beautiful floral emblems gave evidence of the high esteem with which the deceased was regarded. Rev. Mr. Kennigott was the officiating clergyman, assisted by Mr. Cummings of Andover Seminary, who performed the committal service at the grave. Mr. James Donnelly sang two selections: "Lead Kindly Light" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

"Deceased was energetic and careful in business, affable and social in his office, on the street and in his home, and was greatly esteemed as an upright and enterprising citizen. Seemingly he had everything to live for, but the ways of Providence are indeed mysterious. After a long and painful illness he has passed away. In the place of bright anticipations there is now sadness in the home, and the hearts of his many acquaintances are filled with sympathy for the family and relatives now weighed down with heavy affliction. But we shall long remember him as he was known in the prime of his vigorous manhood, strong, cheerful and courageous, courteous to strangers, reliable as a friend and always a gentleman."

ONE LUNG

May be gone and yet the remaining lung will be amply sufficient to sustain a vigorous vitality. As a general thing few people make more use of both lungs than is equivalent to a healthy use of one lung.

These facts are all in the favor of the man or woman with weak lungs, even when disease has a strong grip on them.

Many a person living in health to-day has the lungs marked by the healed scars of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs and other conditions, which, if neglected or unskillfully treated, find a fatal termination in consumption.

"I had been troubled with lung disease and pleurisy for a number of years and the trouble had almost become chronic," writes A. S. Elam, of Howe, Ia.

"Had several kinds of medicine from different physicians without much benefit. At last wrote to Dr. E. V. Pierce and got his advice, and began using his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have used twenty-five bottles. When I commenced taking it I had no appetite, my system was completely run-down, had no ambition to do anything. Now I feel better than I did before I got sick. Have a good appetite and am able to do my work. I sincerely recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all who are afflicted as I was."

Those who suffer from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery."

Fodder Crops.

An interesting co-operative experiment was made for the first time by sowing winter rye, hairy vetches and crimson clover in the autumn for the purpose of producing green fodder in the following summer. The reports show that the crimson clover received the greatest injury from the early spring frosts. The highest individual yields were produced by the hairy vetches. In the average results, however, the winter rye surpassed the hairy vetches by 420 pounds of green fodder per acre, but the quality of the feed of the latter was superior to that of the former. In ten-out of a dozen tests, the hairy vetches were eaten readily by farm animals, and seemed particularly suitable as a feed for hogs. A Bruce farmer reports that the hairy vetches gave a large yield, and were relished by all classes of animals.
