ALLEGED SLANDER.

In Owen Sound, on Friday, Mr. A. G. McKay, M. P. P. for North Grey, who was charged with slandering Matthew Beckett, after the last general provincial election, was acquitted of the charge. The case was tried before a jury and Chief Justice Meredith, and a unanimous verdict was given for the defence. The alleged slander consisted in Mr. McKay stating publicly that the Conservative Committee Rooms were kept open all night previous to the election, that eight or ten white or colored men lay in those rooms drunk or sleeping, and that the whiskey given to a man named Campbell in the committee rooms, had been drugged by Beckett. Campbell swore in court that he had been drugged, and Beckett swore that the charge was absolutely untrue. Mr. McKay said that his statements were made in good faith and were without malice. The case was given to the jurymen who in forty minutes returned a unanimous verdict for the defence. Chief Justice Meredith in charging the jury cautioned them about keeping party spirit out of the court. The judge asked the jury to review the whole circumstances. "It would be well," said he "if in this country when elections are over, they are over in fact. What good could come of raking up charges, crimination and recrimination."

Hon. G. W. Ross has said as far as himself and colleagues are concerned there is no foundation for the rumor that a judgeship is to be offered to Mr. J. J. Foy. The Premier characterizes the story as one circulated for political purposes. Mr. Ross says the rumor was circulated probably for the purpose of making it appear either that Mr. Foy was the only Roman Catholic of sufficient note in the Province to merit such an appointment, or that the Dominion Government was using the powers of appointment to strengthen the Local Government by the removal of Mr. Foy from the field of active politics. Mr. Foy's continuance in public life or his withdrawal from the House is not giving the Premier any concern from a party standpoint.

THE OCTOBER PEARSONS.

Pearson's Magazine has a list of interesting articles this month. In the line of fiction are three short stories (The Blood Red Haze of Madness, by Mr. William Hamilton Osborne, a most unusual and weird story, Deacon Tuttle's Warning, by William Forster Brown, and A Maid of Dreams, by Mr. Crittenden Marriott); also, Cyrus Townsend Brady's serial, Sir Henry Morgan—Buccaneer; How Don Q's Sword was Drawn for the Queen, another of the surprising Don Q. adventures, told by K. and Hesketh Prichard, and The Picaroons, by Gell-Gellett Burgess and Will Irwin, which relate The Story of the Quadroon Woman. Six special articles are: The Story of the States, No. XVI, Pennsylvania, by Mr. Addison B. Burk; The Kite That Lifts a Man, by Mrs. S. F. Cody, F. R. M. S.; A Chat with E. H. Sothorn, by John-a-Dreams; Feeding a Great City, by Mr. Frank W. Hawthorn; Minute Men of the Rail, by Mr. Day Allen Willey, and New York's Medical Women and Their Work, by Katherine G. Townsend, M. D.—A page poem, illustrated, My Lady Violin, by Kathleen L. Greig, and the usual useful and practical articles in the Home Notes Department complete the number which is, as always, profusely illustrated.

White Rose

On Sept. 16 while the Misses Alleyne were on their way to the W. A. meeting they met with rather a serious accident, owing to a culvert on Mr. Harry Gamble's side road being in such a bad state, and the guards off. The pony refused to go over it; she took fright and turned, dashed through the creek throwing Miss Helen out. They were all badly bruised, and the buggy badly broken. We would advise Markham Council to view their culverts as there are others in a bad state of repair.
