

The Newmarket Express-Herald, in its last issue, tries to be witty at the expense of this paper. The Herald said there was "a change in the license system," made by the Whitney Government. THE LIBERAL pointed out that the system had not been changed. The Herald last week wouldn't admit that it had blundered, but it wiggled in this way:—"The law is the same, but system of operating is changed." Certainly, the license law, that is, the license system, is not changed. Hon. Mr. Whitney, when in opposition, said he would change the system so that it would be removed from politics. The Hon. gentleman, however, never explained how this would be done, and no person took the statement seriously. The Express ought to know that since the advent of the new Government nearly every license commissioner from one of the Province to the other, appointed under the Ross Government, has been dismissed, and replaced by prominent Conservatives. We find no fault with what has been done, but possibly the editor had the above in his mind when he referred to "the change in the license system."

The Herald also said: "No man will be given or refused a license on account of his political opinion." Now wouldn't that jar you? The editor knows about the crooked work by the commissioners in the city of Chatham, where an investigation has been held by the Government? The evidence went to show that licenses in that city were cancelled for no other reason than that the holders had been Liberal workers. One commissioner endeavored to justify his act by saying he thought "to the victors belonged the spoils."

Let us again say that it would be as unreasonable as it would be foolish to hold the Whitney Government responsible for such irregularities. Every reader of the Herald, however, knows that had such acts as the above been committed under the Ross Government that paper would have called for the Premier's resignation inside of twenty-four hours. Another quotation and we are done: "Under the Ross Government the administration of the license law was made a part of the political machine. Hotel keepers who supported the party well were not obliged to keep the law, and those who dared to exercise the right of free citizenship were prosecuted."

Unsupported statements like the above are no credit to journalism, and require no answer. The late Government found some of the provisions of the license system difficult to enforce; the present Government will not find them easy. Some of the license commissioners under the former Government no doubt acted in a partisan spirit, and it would be too much to suppose that all the present commissioners will be free from partisanship. We can remember nothing so shameless in the trafficking of licenses under the Ross Government as the Chatham affair, yet we trust that no Liberal newspaper will be so narrow and so unjust as to try to connect the irregularities with Hon. Mr. Whitney or any member of his Government. A certain class of people are not prepared to give even cold justice to a political opponent, and we fear the editor of the Express-Herald belongs to that class.

The surrender of the charter of the Toronto Junction Pool Room and the closing of that institution is commendable on the part of the Ontario Government and the officers of the law. During the regime of the late Government several attempts were made to close the place, and fines were inflicted, but those who had the matter in hand lacked firmness, and betting and gambling went on year after year. There is no use in dealing with such institutions in a half-hearted manner.
