LARGEST NEWSPAPER OFFICE.

"Which is the largest newspaper office in the world?" asks the Printer's Engineer. America naturally claims that the New York Times building, with its thirty-one storeys and an area of 116,349 square feet, holds the record. This, however, is no longer the case. The magnificent edifice recently built for the production of the Scotsman (Edinburgh) puts the former building completely in the shade, for although it can only boast thirteen storeys, yet it possesses an area of 261,787 square feet. This building is more than twice the size of that of the New York Times.

RATS ON A WIRE.

ing was given by a number of rats at Sligo, Ireland, recently. An excise officer, who was cycling by the town hall, happened to look up, and saw an enormous rat making its way along an overhead electric wire. He pointed out the Blondin rodent to the town hall officials, and they watched nearly 150 of the rats pass along, until they were hidden from sight by a lofty flour mill. The rats used their tails as the professional walker on the lofty wire uses his Tonic balancing role, and although they were watched for more than 200 vards there were no casualties.
