Business is not only a great civilizer of nations and of peoples, but also the greatest educator and developer of character in the world, for it is a perpetual school, a great life university where we do not go to recite and hear lectures for three or four hours a day for a few years, but where we are constantly studying and practising, almost from the cradle to the grave. NOT ENOUGH CARS.

The Metropolitan Railway was over-taxed on the holiday, and considerable dissatisfaction is expressed. Almost every car that passed was overcrowded. Men and women with little children could be seen standing at Bond Lake and other places along the line waiting for a car to take them home in the evening, but many of the cars rushed past without stopping, so crowded were they. The company, probably, did not expect such a traffic, but they should provide more accommodation on future holidays.
