

RICHMOND HILL, ONT., June 27, 1907

It is learned through the British press that Lord Dundonald has resigned from the British army. He states by way of explanation that since he was recalled from Canada after his dispute with the Canadian Government he has received no appointment of any kind. What a useful lesson the Dundonald incident should teach. Here was a gentleman filling an honorable position as Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian forces. He differed with his employers—the Dominion Government—but instead of acting on the instructions of the Minister of Militia, he chose to tell his grievances to a lot of young fellows at a public banquet. And well may we say: "Save us from our friends"—so called friends. Had the general's political friends advised him sensibly he might still be doing good work in this country. But they encouraged him to oppose the Government, and we know the result. There are many cases where it can be shown that an employe's judgment is better than his employer's. That is no reason, however why the latter's orders should not be obeyed. It is an old saying and a true one—"it is better to be well pleased than to be well served."

Toronto Saturday Night speaks slightly of the efforts now being put forth by representatives from various countries looking towards the goal of universal peace. The editor says: "A lot of insincere people gathered from many countries are having an enjoyable outing at The Hague just now." The sending of delegates is referred to as a "humbug," and it is suggested that the delegates have no desire that war shall cease. Surely it is not wise to look with suspicion on the motives of men who are endeavoring to solve the problem of cruel warfare. They are engaged in a difficult task, and the goal so much to be desired may never be reached, but we can at least give them credit for sincerity.

The British House of Commons, a few days ago, by a vote of 207 to 12, passed a bill giving municipalities power to regulate or suppress what is known as the poster or billboard nuisance. In the discussion which preceded the vote it was pointed out that many a beautiful landscape was disfigured by the sign or poster of some quack doctor drawing attention to the imperfections of a man's liver. Such a law as the above might be useful in many Canadian towns. Even our own pretty town is sometimes disfigured by the handiwork of the careless bill poster. It is right and proper to bang in store windows, or tack up, bills telling the hungry man where he can get a "Hot Dinner and Tea" on the 24th of May, but the practice of pasting these bills on the sides of buildings, telegraph poles, etc., so that they cannot be even scraped off during the next six months should not be followed. There is no prettier little town in the province than Richmond Hill, but it could be made to look more beautiful by a little thoughtfulness and watchfulness.

JULY CANADIAN MAGAZINE.

The Canadian Magazine for July marks the fortieth anniversary of Confederation with the publication of a number of articles in keeping with the significance of the occasion. Mr. John Lewis, Editor-in-Chief of the Toronto Star, contributes an excellently-written article entitled "The Pathetic of Confederation," and there are several other articles along the same line, for instance, "The Vicereines of Canada," by H. V. Ross; "Journalism at Confederation," by J. E. B. McCready, and "Canada's Possibilities and Perils," by John Maclean. The number contains ten articles, some of them well illustrated, and four short stories, besides the usual departments of comment.

VOLTAIRE MEDAL.

Our postmaster is in possession of a beautifully-executed bronze medal, on one side of which is a life-like bust of Voltaire. The diameter is two and one-half inches; it weighs three ounces. On the reverse side is the representation of a tablet, on which (in French) is the following, as translated: "Taken from nature at the Castle of Ferney, G. C. Waechter, MDCCCLXX." It is a rare souvenir of the eighteenth century. History regards Voltaire as an apostate, a cynic and an Atheist. His writings contributed largely to bring about the French revolution in 1789. He died in 1778.

SUDDEN DEATH

A telegram arrived Saturday morning bearing the sad news that Miss Jessie Hamilton, daughter of Mrs. John Hamilton of Elgin Mills, had died in New York City where she had resided for several years past. Mr. Albert Hamilton, a nephew, started later in the day for New York, and learned that deceased had died suddenly of heart failure at the home of Mrs. O'Neill, 220 W. 22nd St. The remains reached her mother's home at Elgin Mills Tuesday, and yesterday afternoon the funeral took place to the Richmond Hill Cemetery, previous to which a service was conducted by Rev. A. P. Brace. Sincere sympathy is felt for the aged mother and loving relatives in their sad and sudden bereavement. The family desires to thank the neighbors for the kindness shown in the hour of trial.

"THE LIBERAL."
$1.00 IN ADVANCE.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me to-day for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by W. A. Sanderson.

ALL GOOD THINGS

must win upon their merits. The International Dictionary has won a greater distinction upon its merits and is in more general use than any other work of its kind in the English language.

A. H. Sayce, LL.D., D.D., of Oxford University, England, has recently said of it: "It is indeed a marvelous work; it is difficult to conceive of a dictionary more exhaustive and complete. Everything is in it—not only what we might expect to find in such a work, but also what few of us would ever have thought of looking for. A supplement to the new edition has brought it fully up to date. I have been looking through the latter with a feeling of astonishment at its completeness, and the amount of labor that has been put into it."

THE GRAND PRIZE (the highest award) was given to the International at the World's Fair, St. Louis.

FREE—"A Test in Pronunciation," instructive and entertaining for the whole family. Also illustrated pamphlet. G. & C. MERRIAM CO., PUBLISHERS, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
