Nearly 100 men and about as many of the fair sex attended the barn raising of Mr. Thos. Thomson in the village of Headford Tuesday afternoon. The weather was ideal, and the heavy timbers were put together and erected without any serious mishap. The fine building is 80 x 45 feet, on high stone walls, giving excellent stabling for about 30 head of cattle and 8 horses, with several box stalls. Also a large, well-lighted root-house. Both the stone work and the frame work are a credit to the contractors, the former being done by Mr. Kelly, and the latter by Mr. Frank Smith. The captains selected for the raising contest were Walter Eyer and Robert Agar. The work was sharp and close, Mr. Agar's side winning by a few points. Another enjoyable feature of the afternoon was the sumptuous spread which was served on the lawn between the residence and the cedar hedge. The tables were so arranged that about 90 were able to be seated at one time. The man with the camera was present, and took a number of snap shots.
