UNION S. S. EXCURSION.

The union excursion of the Methodist and Presbyterian Sabbath Schools to Beaverton took place Wednesday, and the good time afforded as a consequence will be long remembered by those who went along.

The day exceeded the most hopeful expectations, and 9 o'clock saw the train of the C. N. O. steaming northward with three well-filled coaches of people and children from both denominations, and of others, to not mention the lunch baskets, boxes, etc., which took up room on the seats and on the holders.

Dinner was served soon after the arrival, and by 12.30 o'clock all and everyone of them were free to enjoy the day, as their age, habits and inclinations gave them leave.

A few of the "hot blood" spent time in the boats, combating the wind and the waves, but, with the exception of those who made trips in the launch, no great desire was evidenced in that direction, and the seemingly natural, if not habitual, hostility of Lake Simcoe to Sunday-School picnic was vented on a rocky shore, a few bathers and a dog, which understood to a nicety how to take the buffets of the billows. Many enjoyed a drive in the livery, which was engaged for the day, but probably the majority spent a big part of the afternoon in the town proper, where the townspeople were given an opportunity of exercising their curiosity. Several places were visited, and the new St. Joseph's Catholic church, the corner stone of which bears the date "1910", and which was not in esse on the date of last year's excursion, was an added place of interest, and was accessible to those who cared to inspect. Tea was served at five, and races were held for the scholars of the schools, in which they eagerly took part and made pin money.

The train left shortly after the schedule time of 6.53 o'clock. The teachers and officers of both schools are to be congratulated on the magnificent success. Many had gone and the many returned, some possibly not as fresh as when they started, but all felt that a pleasant day had been spent, and some, that even topography had its charm, as well as its instruction.

HOW CANADA REGULATES ITS TIME.

From early days the clocks of Toronto have been regulated by time obtained at the Observatory from star transits across the meridian, and in more recent years the time service over the larger part of the Dominion has been performed by meteorological observers and paid for out of the meteorological appropriation. By the present system the director of the Observatory at McGill University obtains time by transit observations, and the Observatory clock automatically transmits signals to various parts of Montreal, including the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways, which companies distribute it along their lines. Quebec Observatory gives time signals to that city, and the director of the Saint John Observatory sends time signals throughout the Maritime Provinces, including the dropping of time balls in both Saint John and Halifax and the transmission seaward of a noon signal by wireless telegraphy for the benefit of ocean shipping. About twice a month, in order to make comparison between the time signals sent out from Toronto and those sent out from the various observatories, telegraphic exchanges are made, the signals from outside stations being recorded electrically on the chronograph in the Central Meteorological Office, Toronto, thus assuring agreement and accuracy in the Dominion time service. —R. F. Stupart, writing on "The Canadian Meteorological Service" in the July Canadian Magazine.

A WORD ABOUT BREAD.

Bread eaten hot is usually made by some other method than the use of yeast. According to the accepted doctrines of the best black cooks in the South a combination of soda and buttermilk produces the most delectable bread. Baking powders are formed by the mixture of an acid and an alkaline powder, which, when mixed with dough, give off carbon-dioxide quite as effectively as does yeast, providing the dough be not too thick and heavy. In aerated bread, which is very popular in England but not used much in this country, the carbon-dioxide gas is forced into the dough directly by machinery. "Salt-rising" bread is a self-raised bread in which ferments acquired from the air produce the leavening gas. Beaten biscuit, a form of bread very popular in the South and eaten both hot and cold, are made by vigorously beating the dough. This beating imprisons countless tiny air bubbles in the dough, which in baking expand, and thus leaven the biscuit.

Bread is the oldest known form of artificially prepared food. The testimony of the Bible proves that the methods of bread-making in ancient Egypt were essentially dissimilar from those in use to-day. Loaves of bread were found in ovens of Pompeii which were just the same as those made in modern Italy. Nevertheless the people of the twentieth century enjoy better bread than ever has been known before because of the advancement in the art of grinding the grain, preparing and handling the flour, and making the bread. England improves three-fourths of the wheat it uses, yet bread is to be bought from the English bakeries for less than half what it sells for in the United States.
