

GREAT TRIALS ON TRANSCONTINENTAL

ALPHONSE JONELLE TELLS TALE WITH HUMAN INTEREST.

Hardships attending work brought on kidney disease which threatened his life.—Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Chicoutimi Ville, Chicoutimi-Co., Que., March 13 (Special) — The trials of those men who push the great railroads through the obstacles Nature thrusts in their way have been proclaimed in many a page of fiction. But no story ever told is of more absorbing interest or teaches a greater moral than the actual experiences of Alphonse Jonelle, foreman on the Transcontinental, and well known here.

"I contracted kidney disease working on the Transcontinental, where I am a foreman," Mr. Jonelle states. "My skin had a harsh, dry feeling, and it itched and burned at night. I was always tired. Then came the pangs of rheumatism, and I finally got so bad I could not attend to my work. For five years I suffered, and in the end Bright's Disease developed.

"Then I began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes cured me completely. Dodd's Kidney Pills also cured my wife, who was suffering from kidney disease."

From all parts of Canada, and every day reports come of kidney disease cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is never a case reported where Dodd's Kidney Pills have failed. They never fail.

SAVED FROM WORKHOUSE.

Story of Robert Blatchford, the English Socialist.

Robert Blatchford, best known as editor of the Clarion and author of "Merrie England," has put into his stories many of his own adventures in London, where, as a mere boy, he walked the streets, hunting for work to save himself from actual starvation. The following story, quoted in A. Neil Lyons' life of Blatchford, has served "interests," chief of which, perhaps, is its testimony to the enduring quality of the mother's passion. The boy, tired out and despairing, had finally gone to the police office for a ticket to the Clerkenwell Workhouse. Waiting outside with other vagrants, he sat down on the pavement by a miserable woman.

She was a swarthy woman, her skin tanned by long exposure to the weather. She wore no bonnet, and was smoking a short black pipe. I watched her for some time, and thought what a bold, hard, wicked face she had, and at length, more from curiosity to hear her speak than for any desire for information, I ventured to ask her a question about the tickets.

She turned upon me with a scowl, which gradually melted away as she looked at me, and at last said, not unkindly:

"What do you want to know for, boy? You're not going to Clerkenwell, are you?"

I said I was. She sat smoking for a few minutes, then took her pipe from her lips and stroking her chin with her great brown hand, said, very much to my surprise:

"You mustn't; no, you mustn't. You're only a boy, and not used to any kind of wickedness, I can see. Don't you go, boy; don't you go."

"I have no other place to sleep," I said.

She shook her head.

"Sleep in the streets; boy, sleep on the bridges; anywhere but there. It's the worst workhouse in all London. No, you mustn't go."

"But you are going."

"Oh, me," she said, and laughed. "It's good enough for me. But you are different. Ah, don't be stubborn. Take an old woman's advice. It's a cruel place. Don't go, don't go."

"I'm not a child," I said.

She laughed again, not pleasantly, and answered, "You know nothin', nothin'. I know all. Been through it all."

Then, very earnestly, she continued, leaning close to me, "Be advised, now. Be told. I know these places; and I've had sons of me pwn. Don't go, don't go. D'ye hear?"

I rose up wearily from the pavement.

"I will take your advice," I said.

She nodded and put the pipe back in her mouth. "Good," she said, "good boy. Now you're talkin'," and turned her attention another way.

BLIND OBEDIENCE.

A gentleman had a new head gardener who never thought of having a holiday or missing a day from work, and so somewhat surprised his employer by asking him if he could have "nixt Friday off."

His request was immediately granted; but on the Saturday he did not show up, and a week went past, and then a fortnight, and still no sign of Mike. The gentleman reluctantly employed another man in Mike's place.

About three months afterwards he was surprised on going into the grounds to find Mike at work just as if nothing had happened.

"Where have you been to, Michael?" he asked.

"Well, sorr, it's loike this. You remember the day you let me off? I had to appear at the court as a witness. When I gets there, I sees the old gint with the wig on 'is 'ead and 'is specs on the tip of 'is nose.

"Michael Dooley," sez 'e.

"'Yis, sorr," sez I.

"Go into that box," says 'e.

"Right, sorr," sez I.

"Swear," sez 'e.

"I did as 'e told me, though I doan't use bad language as a rule.

"Three months for contimpt of court," sez 'e.

"And they've only just let me out, sorr."

"I want to complain of the flour you sent me the other day," said Mrs. Youngwife severely. "What was the matter with it, ma'am?" asked the grocer. "It was tough. My husband simply wouldn't eat the biscuits I made with it."

The most delicate can take them without feeling the revulsion that follows the taking of ordinary pills. This is one reason for the popularity of these celebrated pills, but the main reason is their high tonical quality as a medicine for the stomach.
