ILLUMINATIVE STATISTICS.

Rural Population of Ontario 50,000 Less Than at Previous Census.

A despatch from Ottawa says: A bulletin issued the other day by the Census Department gives some interesting and illuminative statistics with regard to the progress of agriculture in Ontario during the decade from 1901 to 1911. It is significant that the total population of the Province shows an actual decrease during the decade, although the value of agricultural products, notably in feed grains and in live stock and dairy products, shows a large increase. The immense possibilities for further agricultural development in the Province is shown by the fact that, exclusive of the 141,000,000 acres of the new district of Patricia, only 15 1/2 per cent. of the total land area of the Province, or 21,933,700 acres out of 166,951,636, is occupied for agricultural purposes.
The rural population of the Province at the date of the census was 1,194,785, a decrease of 52,184 during the decade, and of 100,538 since 1891.
During the ten years from 1901 to 1911 the area of occupied land increased by 2.73 per cent., while the number of farm holdings decreased by 10,861. This latter decrease has occurred wholly in the case of the smaller holdings. Most of those were usually contiguous to cities and have been cut up into building lots. The average size of farm holdings at the date of the census was 98.25 acres, as against 95.25 acres in 1901.

Land in field crops increased from 9,212,478 acres in 1901 to 9,691,116 acres in 1911, being an increase of 478,638 acres, or 5.19 per cent. in the ten years; the land in orchard and nursery increased from 267,478 acres in 1901 to 268,000 in 1911; the land in vegetables and small fruits was 70,437 acres in 1911, as against 65,303 acres in 1901. Land in vineyards increased by 1,081 acres in the decade. The land under spring wheat decreased from 1900 to 1910 by 262,038 acres, or more than 70 per cent., and that under fall wheat by 355,240 acres, or 32 per cent. There were decreases in the areas and total production of all cereals excepting oats, buckwheat, mixed grains and flax, the greatest falling off having occurred in corn for husking, wheat, peas and barley.

GREEK WOMEN'S EARS CUT

Found in Bulgarians' Pockets When They are Taken Prisoners

A despatch from London says: The Balkan States appear to be again in the melting-pot. There is no sign of peace at present. Greece and Serbia have declined so far to agree to an armistice. The Turkish army is advancing by forced marches from Tehatalja and Bulair, apparently with the consent of Greece and Serbia, to attempt the recapture of Adrianople and Thrace. Roumania is said to be proceeding to occupy a much larger extent of Bulgarian territory than she previously claimed, and Greece is burning to avenge the Bulgarian massacre, concerning which horrifying details continually appear in the official reports issued from Athens and Salonika. According to these reports, ears and fingers of Greek women still bearing ear-rings and rings were found in the pockets of Bulgarian prisoners.
