

WATERY BLISTERS INTENSELY ITCHY

Between Fingers. Spread to Tips. Would Swell Up, Itch and Burn. Did Not Dare Put Hands in Water. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

Carman, Manitoba.—"A breaking out between my fingers was the first trouble. It was very itchy and spread to my finger tips affecting the nails. It first appeared in watery blisters and they were so intensely itchy I scratched them and let the water out making sores. They would swell up, itch and burn and finally the nails would loosen and come off. I spent many sleepless nights. I did not dare to put my hands in water except to wash them.

"I kept using ointments, ointment, but was not cured. Sometimes the remedies would help a little but I was not free from it altogether. I was that way for nine years trying everything. I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for them and before I had used them half a dozen times I noticed an improvement. By washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment frequently I was cured in three months." (Signed) Miss Florence E. Sanderson, May 20, 1913.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp that torture, itch, burn, scald and destroy sleep. A single set is often sufficient. Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

MALAY TIGERS.

An Exciting Time in a Singapore Hotel.

As late as 1869, an authority on sport in the Malay Archipelago wrote that in Singapore there were always a few tigers roaming about, and that, on an average, they killed a Chinaman every day—generally one of the men who worked in the gambler plantations, which are made in newly cleared jungle. Although there is no danger to-day that tigers will spring upon unwary travelers about Singapore, write Messrs. Arnold Wright and T. H. Reid in "The Malay Peninsula," there is a certain excitement about living in a place where the following incident occurred, and where its repetition is not impossible.

It is now several years since a tiger was shot within the precincts of the town. The honor of this particular kill belong to Mr. C. M. Phillips, the head master of Raffles Institution. The tiger had not swum the straits from Johore, but had escaped from a cage in which it was awaiting shipment from Singapore. It caused consternation by walking into the compound of the Raffles Hotel, and seeking refuge under the billiard-room in a detached building.

The billiard-players at once made a hurried exit. Mr. Phillips having been summoned, took post a few yards from the uninvited guest, whose eyes he could see shining in the darkness of its hiding-place, and was lucky to kill it.

The peninsula in its wilder parts, indeed, is a veritable paradise for big game. In its vast, wide-spreading forests range many noble species that are worthy of the skill of the keenest of hunters. The annual report of the railway department for 1906 contained a photographic reproduction of a scene that quite amusingly illustrated the perils that await the railway pioneer when he intrudes into the domain of wild nature. The picture reveals a wrecked railway-train, a locomotive completely off the rails, its tender reduced to scrap-iron, and its wheels off to one side, buried deeply in the dirt. The cause of all this mischief is shown in another picture. It was a wild elephant, a tusker of imposing size.

Blood troubles yield to LIQUID SULPHUR

Pat Won It.

"Look here, Pat," said an old gentleman to his Irish servant, "to-morrow evening if you bring my tea without spilling a drop in the saucer I will give you a shilling to yourself." "Right, sir," said Pat, and the following evening he won the shilling by bringing the cup in one hand and the saucer in the other.

"TRACTS" TOWARDS DOOR.

Book agents have become such a nuisance that most business men give orders that they are not to be admitted to their private offices. One persistent man, however, by one pretext or another, gained interviews with the various influential citizens. He reached the head office of the Bank of Toronto, and when the clerk was engaged, he walked into the office of the president, Mr. Duncan Coulson. Mr.

Mr. Duncan Coulson.

Coulson was earnestly engaged in conversation with a business friend, but stopped and asked the man his business. He was agent for a series of religious books, and when Mr. Coulson told him his library was already well filled, the agent persisted in exploiting the merits of his wares and, thinking he might at some future time make a sale, asked if he might leave some tracts. "Yes," replied Mr. Coulson, "with the toes towards the door."

Cramps at Night Require Prompt Remedy

Agonizing Pain Prevented by Keeping Nerviline Handy On the Shelf.

A Case in Point Illustrated.

Deadly cramps—the symptoms are not to be mistaken. Suddenly and without warning the patient experiences such agony in the stomach as to contort the countenance and cause him to cry aloud for help.

Then it is that the wonderful power of Nerviline can make itself felt—it cures so quickly.

"Last summer I was stricken with a frightful attack of cramps. I feared the pain in my stomach would kill me. My eyes bulged out and the veins in my forehead stood out like whiplashes.

"My cries attracted a neighbor, who came to my assistance, and in a moment or two handed me half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in some sweetened water.

"It seemed as if an angel had charmed away the pain. In ten seconds I was well. Nerviline has a wonderful name in this locality, and is considered best for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, stomach and bowel disorders. I urge all my friends to use Nerviline.

Both Waiting For It.

"At last," he sighed, "we're alone. I've been hoping for this chance.

"So have I," she said, very frankly.

"Ah! you have guessed, then, that I wanted to tell you that I love you?"

"Yes; and I want to say 'No,' and get it over with."

The Tactless One.

"I will confess to you," she said, "that I am older than I look. I will be thirty-one my next birthday."

"Really?" he replied. "Hardly anyone would guess that you were more than about twenty-nine."

"That's the last time," she said when he had departed, "that I'll ever try to be nice to a brute."

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor

That Played - Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early Symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health, which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, and my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c. boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Cattarhazone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

SUCIDES AND DIABETES.

The Chief Causes of Death, Says Dr. Jacques Bertillon.

Dr. Jacques Bertillon, the well-known statistician for the Department of the Seine, Paris, has prepared tables relative to the rate of mortality and causes of death in different occupations.

The principal causes of death noted are intemperance, disease of the chest, heart, liver and nerves, diabetes, suicide and accidents.

The most healthy occupations are naturally those followed in the open air, but there must be movement, otherwise the constant exposure is bad for health. Thus gamekeepers and park and forest keepers live long, while drivers, who are exposed to the air without movement, are not long lived.

M. Bertillon claims that engine drivers, men employed in wood cutting and in matting, school teachers, lawyers and clergymen live the longest. The mortality amongst doctors, employees of the post office, commercial travellers, grocers, fruiterers, hatters and some other trades, such as watchmaking and tanning, is low. Domestic servants and coachmen employed in private families also represent a low death rate.

The mortality surpasses the average among functionaries, tramway and gas workers, itinerant fish and poultry sellers, drapers, saddlers, bakers, millers, butchers, boatmen, carters, sailors, cycle dealers, &c.

Finally, day laborers are bad lives, so are doctors, miners, stone cutters, shop assistants, drivers, grooms and jockeys, newspaper vendors and pavement merchants, printers, blacksmiths, messengers, chimney sweeps, barbers and musicians.

Suicide and diabetes are two principal causes of death. Generally, it is only persons of a certain social position who are affected by this malady, such as functionaries, teachers, doctors, lawyers, wine merchants, farmers and the clergy. The clergy are particularly subject.

Suicide has also its high and its low rates of occurrence, though it appears in all professions. It is rare among the clergy and functionaries and just those classes which follow the healthiest occupation. It is more often found among grocers, hardware dealers, drapers, coopers, polishers, tobacconists, lawyers' clerks and architects. But it is frequent amongst "camelots," shop assistants, cutlers, coiffeurs, domestic servants, costers, lawyers, doctors and chemists.

But suicides are by far the most often met with among the drink sellers, chimney sweeps, butchers, fruiterers and musicians.

Bibber's Beak.

"Many judge from Bibber's red nose that he's a heavy drinker, but he's not. His nose is like a gas meter."

"How not?"

"It registers more than is consumed."

Skin diseases yield to LIQUID SULPHUR.

"We're not going to have much of a wedding. Jack and I want to have everything as simple as possible." "Well, you will have it all right. You'll have each other, won't you?"

LIQUID SULPHUR cleanses the blood.

A Vancouver man awoke from his slumbers and heard a man trying to get in his front door. He turned loose at the man with a shotgun, and a policeman chased the stranger who took to flight. He was caught and spent the night in a cell. In the morning it was found that the supposed house-breaker was a neighbor, who had mistaken the other man's door for his own while in a bibulous condition.

MRS. A. SAICH, of Cannington Manor, Sask., Writes:—"My brother suffered severely from eczema. The sores were very extensive, and burned like coals into his flesh. Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."

This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like this wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.
