

CHILDHOOD DANGERS.

No symptoms that indicate any of the ailments of childhood should be allowed to pass without prompt attention. The little ailment may soon become a serious one and perhaps a little life passes out. If Baby's Own Tablets are kept in the house minor troubles can be promptly cured and serious ones averted. The Tablets can be given to the new-born babe as well as the growing child. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE.

Interesting Chat About Famous Men and Women.

The Chief Rabbi, Dr. Hertz, who has been visiting the Front, is not so well known as his predecessor, the late Dr. Adler, but this disadvantage will disappear in time. He has a horror of being interviewed, which is why his name is so rarely seen in the newspapers.

The actress who possibly feels the deepest interest in the Australian troops is Miss Marie Lohr, Australian-born herself. Her birthplace was Sydney, and her first stage appearance was made there. Her father used to be treasurer of the Opera House, Melbourne.

Very amusing for the dryness of his remarks in the House, Mr. Harry Watt, the broad-shouldered M.P. for the College Division of Glasgow, is the most sartorially resplendent figure in Parliament to-day, with his white Ascot hat, his white spats, and his huge satin cravat.

Mr. John Buchan, whose fine story of the second battle of Ypres in "The Times" has added largely to his reputation as a writer on the war, achieved the difficult task of inducing Sir Edward Grey and Mr. A. J. Balfour to preside at his lectures on the conflict on separate occasions.

The reason why Mr. Wm. R. Pringle, the very active Scottish M.P., opposed the National Register Bill, is that he believed all the information could have been got from the records of the Insurance Commissioners, and he wanted to save the extra expense. His views may be wrong, but no one doubts his courage.

A statesman whose name you never hear mentioned is Lord Morley, who went out of the Cabinet when we declared war against Germany. It is his wish during the war, it is understood, to be forgotten. If Mr. John Burns did not attend the House of Commons so regularly, he would, it is to be presumed, suffer the same fate, too.

King Nicholas, the homely monarch of Montenegro, the war chiefs of which received decorations at our hands, has a pleasant wit. To a visitor he once remarked: "When you speak of the few exports of my country, don't forget my daughters"—an allusion to the brilliant marriages they have formed. One daughter, for instance, is married to the King of Serbia.

Black is now the habitual wear of Queen Alexandra, and it becomes her well. Her Majesty's energy is remarkable. One day she is found driving through the streets of London to thank her rose-sellers; another day she is the central figure at a function connected with war aeroplanes, everywhere charming all hearts with her winning smile, which surely must be the secret of her eternal youth.

FAMILY FOOD

Crisp, Toothsome, and Requires No Cooking.

A little boy asked his mother to write an account of how Grape-Nuts food had helped their family.

She says Grape-Nuts was first brought to her attention where she visited.

"While I was there I used the food regularly. I gained weight and felt so well that when I returned home I began using Grape-Nuts in the family regularly.

"My little 18-months-old baby shortly after being weaned was very ill while teething. She was sick nine weeks, and we tried everything. She became so emaciated that it was painful to handle her, and we thought we were going to lose her. One day a happy thought urged me to try Grape-Nuts soaked in a little warm milk.

"Well, it worked like a charm, and she began taking it regularly, and improvement set in at once. She grew well and round and fat as fast as possible on Grape-Nuts.

"Some time ago several of the family were stricken with La Grippe at the same time, and during the worst stages they could not relish anything in the shape of food but Grape-Nuts and oranges, everything else was nauseating.

"We all appreciate what your famous food has done for our family."

PROFITS FROM ROTATION.

The crops are rotated on the twenty-three demonstration farms operated in North Dakota. This gives each crop the best chance to do well. In 1914, the average cost per acre of producing the crops was $9.13, the average income per acre was $17.49, leaving an average net return of $8.36. The net profits per acre from each crop was: Corn, $8.49; hard wheat, $8.02; durum, $18.33; oats, $7.87; barley, $2.07; oats and peas, $7.83; clover, $8.96; timothy and clover, $17.36; potatoes, $9.51; winter rye, $10.80; alfalfa, $20.95; and millet a loss of $1.86. The first of these farms was started nine years ago. A five to six year rotation is practised on most of them.

ADVANCE WINTER PREPARATIONS.

By A. P. Marshall, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Many blighted hopes for heavy winter results with poultry can be directly traceable to the neglect to furnish or correct early enough things that, while they do not in any way cause trouble, yet when severe conditions begin to appear they catch the flock unprotected and susceptible to disease and unable to withstand the first severe changes when they come.

Birds, therefore, should be early housed in such a way as to prevent any possibilities of contracting disease. All windows should be in place, any cracks to cause drafts should be filled up, and everything that will add to the necessary winter comfort of the birds should be provided, so that when winter really comes along they should be used to the conditions they are to have. If any changes are necessary in the coops, the sooner they are arranged for the better. Hens get accustomed to certain things, and it always bothers them to have any changes made. If a decision can be reached as to the exact arrangement and equipment desired, it is best to have it carried out as early as possible, and get the birds accustomed to all their surroundings, so that they can get well started to business before the worst of the winter begins. If well started, they can be expected to do their best right through the winter.

Now is the time to decide whether a new floor will be put in, whether dirt or sand will be obtained to supply new material for the floor, or what change will be made in the nests, hopper, roosts, or other inside surroundings. Generally if some careful thought is given the matter in advance, better arrangements will be the result, than if everything is left to the last minute and provided for only when need becomes absolutely imperative.

There are many other ways that provision can be made for the coming winter that will not only prove a saving, but often things can be provided which otherwise might not be readily procurable when one might be willing to do almost anything to secure them. Grain as it is being harvested, green food of a very great variety, and many little farm products that are practically a waste to the farmer can be procured for a song, and the saving and advantage to the birds be such as to bring bigger results than can be secured any other way.

What must not be forgotten is the culling of the flock to as nearly what are to occupy the coops, and the arrangement of the pens, so that no change will be necessary among the birds. Nothing seems to upset a flock more than the continual changing of the birds, and if it is possible to have the layers and breeders settled well before winter sets in, the increased results will repay for any extra effort or consideration given at this time.

The best birds for breeding should be selected, and any special attention given them now will show later in the chicks. No better time can be found to determine the probable breeding value of the birds than when they are growing, and especially when they begin to reach maturity. By selecting those that keep coming right through, growing vigorously, the whole season through, the best in vitality of the season's production will be used and the best results can be expected from them as breeders.

The males should be selected as early as possible and given every consideration that will make them mature into vigorous, hearty birds that command all that they preside over. To lose his spirit usually makes a male less valuable as a breeder, and continuous abuse at the hands of another will completely break the spirit of an otherwise good bird. No risk should be run of ruining a particularly good specimen in this way, especially if he is in the least timid, but on the other hand, particular pains should be taken to encourage him to feel that he is cock-of-the-walk, and his development will be so much better, that his service will be very much more than was otherwise possible.

The foregoing are only a very few ideas that present themselves, and merely suggest that it is well about this time to try and think ahead, and placing ourselves in the position of the winter season, think out all the possible requirements that will be possible to arrange for now, and doing so, save money, and have things that it will be impossible to readily supply without making the cost prohibitive.

Getting It Straight.

Husband—You spend altogether too much money.

Wife—Not at all! The trouble is you don't make enough.

Tea Costs More Money.

In a recent issue of the London (Eng.) "Standard" it was stated: "That prices of tea have risen and are now at their highest point for thirty-six years." This reflects the greatly increased cost of tea at the gardens whence the world's supply originates. Tea is undoubtedly costing more throughout the world.

In Germany the prefix "von," as in Von Hindenburg, means "Court worthy." It is granted by the Sovereign, who alone can raise a man from the rank of a citizen to that of a gentleman.

Gorillas build nests among the branches of trees, in which the mother and young ones sleep, whilst the father sleeps at the foot of the tree, mounting guard over his family.

Easier to Spell.

Young Arthur, the pride of the family, had been attending school all of six weeks, and his devoted parent thought it was high time he should find out how things were running. So he asked one afternoon:

"And what did my little son learn about this morning?"

"Oh, a mouse. Miss Wilcox told us all about mouses."

"That's the boy! Now, how do you spell mouse?"

It was then Arthur gave promise of being an artful dodger. He paused meditatively for a moment, then said: "Father, I guess I was wrong. It wasn't a mouse teacher was telling us about. It was a rat."

TO INSURE YOUR CORN CROP BUILD A SILO.

A silo is not only the safest form of crop insurance for the Wisconsin farmer, but its stock insurance as well. The succulent form of feed helps to keep the herd in good health, and insures a milk flow.

The farmers who have silos are not uneasy because of the backwardness of the corn crop. Even if the season has been backward, they are confident that the crop will go into the silo in fine shape for the stock. And many farmers who, before this year, are not thought of investing in silos, are now asking themselves: "What kind shall I build?"

The value of silage as a feed cannot be overestimated during any year; but in a year like this the worth of a silo in making sure an otherwise somewhat doubtful harvest is emphasized.
