CHAPTER ANI.-(Cont'd.) "You mean-"

He placed his hand upon her arm, and she ventured one more look into his eyes. He was frowning. must not allow that. She must send him away in good spirits. That was the least she could do So she forced ed her. "I knew there was something a smile.

"All right," she promised; "if it "Peter," she said earnestly, "can will make you more comfortable."

thought you weren't going to be responsibilities of marriage?" happy." "I'll go out every fair day."

"That's fine." He took a card from his pocket and could not have gone on. scribbled his banker's address upon

-where I can be of any use, you can cause-because so she thought she always reach me through this ad- would be left free." dress."

She took the card. Even to the end he was good-good and four-square. He was so good that her throat ached. dren are all there is to life?" he ask-She could not endure this very much ed. longer. He extended his hand. | She caught her breath.

"S'long and good luck," he said. than you think."

Then he said a peculiar thing. He dom." seldom swore, and seldom lost his "What freedom?" he demanded head as completely as he did that sec- again. "It's when we're alone that eyes, he ejaculated below his breath: - woman alone, a man alone, living to "Damn golf!"

second her face was illumined as with man can exhaust all there is in life for "I've felt your lips." repeated his words.

'Damn golf.'" Then she threw herself a woman lasts a little longer, but not into a wicker chair and began to sob. much longer. Then they are locked "Oh!" she choked. "If-if-"

CHAPTER XXII.

ous about his destination, being sure freedom." of only one fact: that he should not return inside of a year, if he did then. gasp. Peter had asked for his address, and Monte had given him the same ad- that?" dress that he gave Marjory.

"I want to keep in touch with you," Peter said.

Peter missed the man. On the ride ed a great deal of him.

hand."

"He has blue eyes," she told him, "and they are clean as a child's." "They are a bit sad?"

"What made you think so?"

"Perhaps because, from what he let "It's terrible," he murmured. Covington." "He told you that?"

"No; no directly," he assured her. "He's too loyal. I may be utterly mistaken; only he was rather vague as to why she was not here with him."

"She was not with him," Marjory answered slowly. "She was not with him because she wasn't big enough to deserve him." "Then it's a fact there's a tragedy

In his life?" "Not in his-in hers," she answered passionately. "How can that be?"

"Because she's the one who realizes the truth." "But she's the one who went away." "Because of that. It's a miserable story, Peter."

"You knew her intimately?" "A great many years." "I think Covington said he had known you a long time." "Yes."

him, wasn't there anything you could "I did what I could," she answered wearily. "Perhaps that explains why he hur- honest love."

ried back to her." "He hasn't gone to her. He'll never go back to her. She deserted him, and now-he's going to make it permanent." "A divorce?" "Yes, Peter," she answered, with a little shiver. "I know all that he mean to her," she choked.

"She loves him?" "With all her heart and soul."

she told him. She can never let him know it. She'd deny it if he asked her. She loves him enough for she said. that."

"And he doesn't know it?"

3,000 Rods, from 32 cents per rod, up. Shipped promptly from stock.

Write for Price List.

A. R. LUNDY _ Toronto

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Peter. "There's a mistake there somewhere."

"The mistake came first," she ran She ing you these things, except that it is pain. a relief to tell them to some one."

"Tell me all about it," he encouragon your mind."

you imagine a woman so selfish that "It would worry me a lot if I she wanted to marry just to escape the

"It isn't possible," he declared. Her cheeks were a vivid scarlet. Had he been able to see them, she

"A woman so selfish," she faltered ahead, "that she preferred a make-"If anything should come up where believe husband to a real husband, be-

> "Free for what?" he demanded. "To live."

"When love and marriage and chil-

"You see, she did not know that "I-I hope your golf will be better then. She thought all those things called for the sacrifice of her free-himself alone-what is there for him? The observation was utterly irrelev- He can only go around and around in ant. Turning, he clicked his heels a pitifully small circle—a circle that together like a soldier and went out. grows smaller and smaller with every The door closed behind him. For a year. Between twenty and thirty a a great joy. In a sort of ecstasy, she himself alone. He has eaten and slept and travelled and played until "He said," she whispered—"he said, his senses have become dull. Perhaps away in themselves until they die." "Peter!" she cried in terror.

"It's only as we live in others that Monte left Nice on the twentieth of we live forever," he ran on. "It is July, to join—as Peter supposed—only by toiling and sacrificing and suf-Madame Covington in Paris. Monte fering and loving that we become imhimself had been extremely ambigu- mortal. It is so we acquire real

"Yes, Peter," she agreed, with a

"Couldn't you make her understand "She does understand. That's the pity of it." "And Covington?"

"It's in him to understand; onlywith Marjory that he enjoyed the next she lost the right to make him underday after Morte's departure, he talk- stand. She-she debased herself. So she must sacrifice herself to get clean "I'd like to have seen into his eyes," again. She must make even greater he told her. "I kept feeling I'd find sacrifices than any she cowed away something there more than I got hold from. She must do this without any of in his voice and the grip of his of the compensations that comes to those who have been honest and unafraid."

"What of him?"

"He must never know. He'll go "Monte's eyes sad?" she exclaimed, round and round his little circle, and she must watch him."

drop the other night, I gathered he will be terrible for her to watch him wasn't altogether happy with Mrs. do that. If you had told him how sometimes sought employment temshe felt-"

"God forbid!" "Or if you had only told me, so that could have told him-" She seized Peter's arm. "You wouldn't have dared!"

"I'd dare anything to save two people from such torment."

"Only for the moment," she broke "But soon-in a week or twohe will be quite himself again. He has a great many things to do. He has tennis and-and golf." ("Damn golf!" Monte had said.)

now to be satisfied with such things," ture of munitions. said Peter. "It's a pity-it's a pity there are not two of you, Marjory.' "Of me?" .

"He thinks a great deal of you. ' If "Then, knowing her and knowing he had met you before he met this other-"

> "What are you saying, Peter?" "That you're the sort of woman

There, beside Peter who could not see, Marjory bent low and buried her face in her hands.

"You're the sort of woman," he went on, "who could have roused the man in him that has been waiting all of the surprises of the war. It was this time for some one like you."

he was pinching her with hed-hot "Canada Can". Canada did not reirons! It hurt so much that she was glad. Here, at last, she was beginning her sacrifice for Monte. she made neither moan nor groan, nor "Why, he wouldn't believe it-if covered her ears, but took her punishment like a man.

"Yes," he answered. "Or his life will be wasted. He needs to suffer. He needs to give up. This thing we call a tragedy may be the making of

"For some one else," she repeated. hand. Suddenly she straightened her- is

"It must be for some one else," he said hoarsely-"because I want you for myself. In time you must be 255 King St. West | mine. With the experience of those two before us, we mustn't make the The cultivated area was increased al-same mistake ourselves. I-I wasn't together by 1,000,000 acres. When in going to tell you this until I had my 1917 820,645 men were taken from ineyes back. But, heart o' mine, I've dustrial organizations and placed in held in so long. Here in the dark one the Army the War Office replaced gets so much alone. And being alone is what kills."

She was hiding her hand from him. "I can't find your hand," he whispered, like a child lost in the dark. Summoning all her strength, she placed her hand within his. "It is cold!" he cried.

Yet the day was warm. They were speeding through a sunlighted country of olive trees and flowers in bloom-a warm world and tender.

"Oh, I don't know why I'm tell- ed it, closing her eyes against the would break through and capture the months!" he cried. "I shouldn't have let you go in the first place. shouldn't have let you go."

"No, Peter," she answered. "And now that I've found you again, you'll stay?" He was lifting his face to hersstraining to see her. To have answered any way but as he pleaded would have been to strike that upturned face.

"I-I'll try to stay," she faltered. "I'll make you!" he breathed. "I'll hold you tight, soul of mine. Would you-would you kiss my eyes?"

Holding her breath, Marjory lightly brushed each of his eyes with her trench warfare, and no fighting "It's like balm," he whispered. "I've dreamed at night of this." "Every day I'll do it," she said. "Only-for a little while-you'll not ask for anything more, Peter?"

answer to that call," he replied. said hurriedly. "Only I'm so mixed monment's hesitation to make the up myself."

ond. But, looking her full in the we're slaves-slaves to ourselves. A "To me it's like a day foreseen a dozen years. Long before I saw you I knew I was getting ready for you. Now-what do a few weeks matter?" "It may be months, Peter, before I'm quite steady."

"Only on your eyes," she cried in "I-I wouldn't dare to feel them except on my eyes-for a little while. Even there they take away my breath."

(To be continued.)

The farmers of Canada will very shortly have to undertake the harvest work with the help of green labor. In this connection they should remember that we are at war. They should adjust the work throughout the farm to suit the new conditions, and they should begin right in their own minds.

The first adjustment necessary is to change the point of view from one of criticism, discouragement, and fault-finding with labor conditions, to that of the soldier and war worker, and realize that we are going through a crisis, the most serious the world has ever witnessed without any exaggeration whatsoever.

There used to be talk among farmers derogatory to the city man and other inexperienced laborers who porarily on the farm. Such talk is out of place now, with the Germans sixty miles from Paris and every available man in Britain and France fighting to save not only his own country but this country as well. Such Canadian farmers forget that "You-you don't think he will they themselves have been farmers all their lives and in war time they "I think he is worrying a great can't expect to secure men volunteering from the cities with an experience in farm work equal to their own. That is an impossibility. But it is not impossible that farm production of this country be increased, despite the She checked herself abruptly, shortage of experienced labor. That this is true is proven by the experi-"There's too much of a man in him ence of this country in the manufac-

When the war started Canada was absolutely inexperienced, unskilled in, and without the machinery for the manufacture of munitions. But the manufacturers got to work. They studied the problem and they solved it. To-day Canada is turning out milwho could have called out in him an lions of dollars worth of shells every month from the largest to the smallest, and the most minute mechanical contrivances in connection with fuses and time charges. Canada's record in the manufacture of munitions is one not made by Canada saying "Canada How Peter was hurting her! How Can't" but by adopting the motto fuse to try because of the scarcity of labor but set to work to organize and employed men and girls who had never been inside a factory before. They accomplished the impossible! These "Some one else must do all that," inexperienced helpers were speedily taught their parts and the result is shown in the products of munitions from Canadian factories now known all over the world-not excepting Ger-

The result of organization and the Peter was fumbling about for her willing wartime spirit in Great Britain equally convincing. Great Britain last year, largely with inexperienced labor on the land, increased her cereal production by 850,000 tons, its potato production by 5,000,000 tons.

them with 804,000 women, and yet the production of guns was increased 30 per cent., air craft 250 per cent., while the shipping tonnage amounted to 1,165,000 tons, additional.

The best recent illustration of what can be done in an emergency when only inexperienced men are available is that of the battle of Picardy when the fifth army under General Gough He drew her fingers to his lips and was overwhelmed and out-numbered. its losses and misfortunes, but its kissed them passionately. She suffer- It looked inevitable that the Huns "I've wanted you so all these meant the interruption of railway communication between Channel ports General Carey, however, saved the adds to its firmness. situation. He called upon all classes The estimated yield for winter, of men behind the lines, whether they wheat in the United States is 572, were soldiers, cooks, camp followers, 000,000 bushels, compared with 418, railway construction men, Chinese 000,000 last year and a five-year averlaborers, medical service men, trans- age of 553,000,000. port men, or whatever they were and organized them to fill the breach. With these men he succeeded in doing what the 5th Army failed to do-he held the line! With no training in organization before that time, General Carey gathered them together, and this nondescript gathering of troops kept the Huns back for six days and nights until re-enforcements "Not until some day they open-in arrived. General Carey did not say "I can't use this untrained class of "I didn't mean that, Peter," she men", but he set to work without a best of them, and he succeeded in sav-"It's so new to you," he nodded. ing the British army and its allies from a desperate crisis.

Similarily, if the Canadian farmer makes up his mind that these are war times and war measures are necessary there is absolutely no doubt he "Even if it's years," he exclaimed, can utilize to a tremendous advantage the man power and the woman power of the towns, where people are only too willing to go to his assistance, if they are organized to do so. He must not expect them to be experienced and to know as much about the details of farm work as he does. It has taken him a life-time to acquire his information. Townspeople have spent their lives at different work, but with his knowledge of farming and his intimate acquaintance with his farm and all its needs he should have the ability to organize inexperienced help and show each helper his or her particular job and how best to accomplish it. A few hours' patient teaching in any one particular line of work will very soon enable a greenhorn to "Carry on", as they say in the Army. By patience and consideration the farmers of Canada can, without question, effect an organization from green but willing help from town that will not only surprise themselves but will also be of tremendous benefit to the Empire by the increased red sults of their harvest.

SWEET OR CHURNING CREAM We supply cans, pay express charges and remit daily. Mutual Dairy and Creamery Co. 743-5 King St. West - Toron

"The worst sorrows in life are not fears."-A. C. Benson.

Finance never ruined a country, nor city of Amiens, which would have an individual either, if he had pluck, -Disraeli.

An envelope closed with the white of and Paris, cutting off the British from an egg cannot be opened by the steam one of their chief bases of supplies. of boiling water, as the steam only . 50c and $1.00 Milkweed Cream Velveola Souveraine Face Powder 50c Rouge (3 shades) . . . 50c Zodenta . . . . . Milkweed Cream Soap . . Borated Talcum . . . Complexion Tablets .

FRED'K F. INGRAM CO.

WINDSOR, CAN.

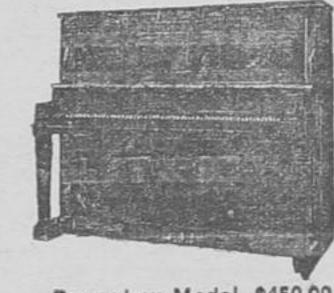

31111611

The daintiness of a complexion always free from oiliness and shininess is the desire of every woman. Best of all powders is Ingram's Velveola Souveraine Face Powder. It keeps the skin smooth and attractive. Hides minor blemishes, the little wrinkles, and blends so marvelously with the complexion that it is scarcely visible. It adheres even tho the skin be warm and moist, and it has a refined and gentle fragrance.

For the sake of youthful charm use Ingram's Milkweed Cream. Its daily use enables you to retain the charm and color of girlhood. It is curative and healthful for the skin tissues. Your druggist has a complete line of Ingram's toilet products including Zodenta for the teeth.

HINNE

THE outward beauty that distinguishes a Williams New Scale Plano is an index of its intrinsic worth. Ideals are built into every one of these famous instrumentsideals of craftsmanship that make for the most enduring quality.

Bungalow Model, $450.00

THE WILLIAMS PIANO CO., LIMITED, OSHAWA, ONT. Canada's Oldest and Largest Plano Makers