BOY SCOUTS

To those of us who have witnessed the activities of the Boy Scouts there comes the realization that something has been missed in our lives. How we would have enjoyed the camping, the hikes, the tests and the competitions if we had had the privilege in our boyhood days. True we often look back with pleasure to those happy days and think tenderly of the dear old chums, but there seems to be more purpose; something that will be of lasting benefit in the training that the boys now receive. Besides the fun and the sports and the useful knowledge gained, the principles of truth, bravery and purity as represented by our grand old flag, are impressed upon the youthful minds, fitting them to better cope with the difficulties of later years.

It is a pleasure to note the manly bearing and the courtesy of the Scouts, and their readiness always to do a favour, or help another, without thinking of any reward, other than the satisfaction that comes from the knowledge of having shown a kindness. A friendly rivalry exists among the boys, and friendships are formed that are lasting. Let us who are older give our help and our sympathy to the boys, and encourage them whenever and in whatever way we can. The scout masters and their assistants will also be encouraged in their work if they know that the public is taking an interest in the welfare of the boys.

THE TORONTO RIOTS

To say that the riots in Toronto last Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday nights are a disgrace to the City is putting the case very mildly. We believe that almost everybody in the Province is doing his and her best to help the returned soldiers who have risked their lives in protecting our lives and property. Yet on Friday evening a body of returned soldiers, assisted by a gang of unruly characters, wrecked with stones and other weapons, more than a dozen restaurants that were licensed and kept by City Conveniences for Country.

The desirability and importance of an ample supply of pure water on every farm can hardly be over emphasized. Perhaps more than any other food element it determines the healthy and robust development of the body. Inversely, deadly disease germs lurk in the impure waters of contaminated wells which may bring death with little warning into the family circle. Without great expense the water supply on the average farm may be so protected as to prevent contamination and it surely seems the part of wisdom in every case to ensure an abundant supply of pure water for man and beast.

Where the household supply must be drawn from a well or a stream at some distance from the dwelling the physical labor involved is great. It may be assumed that when no plumbing is installed an allowance of ten gallons per person per day for all purposes is necessary. With a family of four someone—often the housewife—must carry 400 pounds of water a day, or over one ton a week.

In the stable much the same conditions exist. The task of pumping water by hand for a large number of live stock is slow and arduous—wasteful of time and trying to the temper. And in cold, stormy weather the stock when driven to an outside tank or an ice-covered stream, will rarely drink sufficient for their best performance or development. Water systems in each case pay their way in dollars as well as in convenience, comfort and health.

The question of cost is important. Many improvements may be made, however, such as safeguarding the well from pollution, installing a hydraulic ram, septic tank, gravity system, etc., which are not very expensive and when the farmer is able to do a good deal of the work himself the cost is reduced to a point where thousands can afford the installations. With a practical working knowledge of the principles of farm water supply, water systems, equipment and sewage disposal few, indeed, who have impure well water and are without household and stable water conveniences but can make improvements of a most beneficial nature and at a cost which they can afford to expend.

To give such information is the purpose of a bulletin now presented to the farm public of Ontario by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. Practical information, as complete as possible, and so arranged as to enable each reader to find quickly the particular problem he is most interested in, is given regarding every phase of the water question. To further assist those who may wish to make improvements or installations the authors of the bulletin will gladly give personal attention to any question or problem which may be sent to them.

Greeks who were apparently minding their own business and making an honest livelihood for themselves and their families.

The reason given was that a returned soldier had been maltreated in a Greek restaurant. If the charge were even true the wrecking of a dozen restaurants in various parts of the city would be a miserable way to take revenge. The Toronto News, however, in reporting the incident said that the soldier was taken to the General Hospital, but being so unruly there, he was removed to the Police station, and the next day was fined for being drunk.

Picnic at Abbey Farm

Although Saturday evening was a little chilly for the ice cream and cold drinks the crowd was large and the receipts larger than last year at R. C. picnic at the Abbey Farm, Langstaff. The games in the early part of the evening were exciting, particularly the tug-of-war which was won by Thornhill, from Richmond Hill. The live calf was won by Mrs. Bais, of Toronto, the cut glass jug by Mr. H. Horan, of Thornhill, and three pedigree chickens by Mr. McQuillan, of Elgin Mills. The annual event ended with a dance.

Employees' Picnic

The employees and their friends enjoyed ideal weather for their annual picnic held at Bond Lake last Thursday afternoon and evening. A good programme of games, including racing, tug-of-war, baseball etc was carried out in the afternoon, and in the evening dancing was indulged in, in the pavilion. The luncheon which was in charge of Mrs. Chatterly gave the best of satisfaction.
