

Barn Burned

Mr. Carson Smith's barn at Edgeley was burned to the ground last evening about 6 o'clock, together with most of his implements and last season's and this season's hay crop. Mr. Smith and several others were in the stable when the fire broke out, and were able to save the stock. The cause of the fire is not known.

FARM COLD STORAGE

Small, Efficient Plant Does Not Cost Much.

Simple and Efficient Running Water Systems for the Farm—How Full Directions Regarding Equipment and Installation May Be Secured.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

A COLD storage is a room or building, depending upon the size, cooled by ice or by some mechanical means. In short, it is a place for keeping food products cool in the hot weather.

Since the farms produce the food and since the cooling of it should be done quickly and immediately after its production, say milk for example, in order to keep it in good condition as long as possible, would it not seem good business and economy to have the cold storage on the farm? This applies to our farms particularly since they produce such very perishable products as milk, butter, eggs, fruit and meat. If there was no other advantage in having cold storage on the farm than that it provides a place in which to keep the daily victuals cool and sweet, there would seem to be a good reason for including it in the farm equipment. There are many ways of providing a small cold storage on the farm, but with the exception of very large fruit or dairy farms, the same principle applies to all, namely, that ice is used as the means of cooling. The method of applying the ice to the best advantage constitutes the problem in each individual case. This is why no one system can be recommended for all cases. It is my intention to describe briefly below one type which should give good service in many farm homes.

The particular name of this system is the Bunker system. It consists of a small room a few feet square with a bunker or box or rack at one side for holding the cakes of ice. It is separated from the room by a partition which is kept a few inches off the floor and likewise from the ceiling. The bunker has a slatted floor with pan just below to catch water which is disposed of readily through a drain. This arrangement provides a natural means for the cold air to drop down to the floor, escape into the cooling room proper and for the warm air to pass up over the partition to the ice. So long as this bunker is kept supplied with ice there will be a natural flow of cold air through the storage room. If the room be well insulated it should be possible to maintain a temperature of about 40 deg. Fahrenheit and a fairly dry atmosphere. Those desiring plans for constructing the type just outlined or any other type may receive them free of charge by communicating with the writer. Information and assistance will be freely given to all applicants. Write us.—R. R. Graham, B.S.A., Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Auction Sales
Season Coming

Farmers, in soliciting your sales, I do so, not with a view of beating any other man out of them, but because it is my special profession. Having been a farmer for years, knowing stock and values, (grade or pedigree) knowing how to describe stock and values, having conducted many hundred farm and stock sales, having made a world's record, and having "given to the world its greatest auction work." I can—and I submit grounds for the claim—get you more money from a sale than any other man in the business. Your Sale is dollars to you. Why not get the most of them? Write or see me. J. R. LONG, Auction Specialist, 599, Yonge St. Toronto.
