English Scheme for Second Garden City.

A new project in industrial town building to be called the Second Garden City is in course of formation in England and the development will be on the lines of the First Garden City, which was established at Letchworth in Hertfordshire, fifteen years ago.

The estate chosen is in Hertfordshire, about ten miles from Letchworth, and twenty-one miles from London. Provision will be made for a population of from 40,000 to 50,000.

While the offshoots from the Letchworth experiment have been many, they have taken the form of garden suburbs, with the idea of providing better accommodation for the workers in the city and, to that extent, have served a useful purpose. But no single development has embodied the principles of the First Garden City, which postulate a highly organized industrial town complete in itself and surrounded by a permanent agricultural belt, that shall not suffer disintegration by the expanding needs of the urban centre. The idea is that a chain of small towns properly equipped for all the uses and amenities of life and permanently in touch with agricultural areas is better for public welfare than a few large and overgrown cities constantly destroying the land areas that should feed the population of the cities. It also includes the idea of public ownership of land and public services so that the increments in value of the land and the profits of public utilities shall be conserved for the people who create them.

CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of babyhood and childhood and unless it is promptly cured will undoubtedly lead to disastrous results. To cure this trouble nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild laxative which instantly regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus banishing constipation, colic, colds, etc. Concerning them Mrs. Eugene Vaillancourt, St. Mathieu, Que., writes: "When my baby was constipated I gave her Baby's Own Tablets and am well satisfied with the result. I would strongly recommend them to all mothers for this trouble." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fur Farming in P.E.I.

The recognition of Prince Edward Island as the centre of fur-farming as an established and scientific industry is constantly in evidence. The fame of the island has spread not only throughout this continent but has crossed both the Atlantic and the Pacific. Norway has drawn upon Prince Edward Island breeders for black foxes with which to establish a fur-farming industry in that country. Japanese business men, now investigating industrial conditions in Canada and the United States, are paying a special visit to the island to get first-hand information of fur-farming methods.

Fur-farming is a pursuit which can and will be carried on extensively and profitably in many sections of Canada. But Prince Edward Island has achieved a unique reputation for the industry and is likely to become permanently as renowned for its furs as British Columbia is for its salmon or the Prairie Provinces for their wheat.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the fingers if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of freezezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

It is claimed that at small cost one can get a quarter of an ounce of freezezone at any drug store, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This new drug is an ether compound, and while sticky, dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue.

This announcement will interest many women here, for it is said that the present high-heel footwear is putting corns on practically every woman's feet.

New Way of Stumping.

A novel method of clearing a field of stumps is described in the following letter from a farm woman:

"I had purchased a steam-pressure canning machine, but didn't have any land on which to raise the tomatoes with which I had hoped to make my canner a profitable investment. Eventually I persuaded my family to let me have the use of a two-acre strip that had been cleared off during the winter. I managed to roll the logs together, and either burn them entire or in small enough pieces to allow me to roll them entirely off the land. But the stumps stood so thick that the land was practically useless.

"Coming in the house one day I found my mother lamenting over the number of holes in the bottom of the heater that was being taken out of the dining-room. I asked for the stove, and was given it, with a lot of questions and wondering looks. I hacked the bottom out of it and carried it out to my new ground and set it over a stump. It worked fine. I put on a joint of pipe to keep the sparks in. It burns them out quite a distance into the ground, and does even better when I dig a hole through under the stump next to the taproot, as it seems to draw better. And speaking of drawing, everybody knows how a heater can draw. Of course, the stump has to be chucked up, and it isn't very fast work, but I find I can burn out any stump the stove will fit down over, and do it well and safely."

Keeping Canned Sausage.

In fall when we kill hogs I always fry sausage in cakes just the size we use on the table, put them in glass jars, cover with melted lard, screw up tight, and it is ready for use at any time. I have kept it this way as long as a year. There has always been one drawback—it takes so much lard to cover the cakes, and while it was never entirely lost, it was never so nice to use again. Last year I tried a new scheme. I used only the grease that fried out of the cakes as they were cooking, two or three tablespoonfuls to each jar of sausage; after screwing tight I turned the jar upside down to cool. Of course, the jar was perfectly air-tight when the lard cooled and my sausage kept perfectly. I left the jars standing on the tops, as in the warm weather the lard might melt away, and the sausage would spoil.

I Guess That'll Hold Him.

They were very fond of each other and had been engaged; but they had quarreled, and were too proud to make it up. He called afterward at her house—to see her father on business. She was at the door.

"Ah—Miss Blank, I believe?" said he. "Is your father in?"

"No, sir," she replied, "father is not at present. Do you wish to see him personally?"

"Yes," was the bluff response of the visitor, who felt that his former sweetheart was yielding—"I wanted to see him on very particular business—" and he turned away haughtily.

"I beg your pardon," she called after him as he reached the last step, "but who shall I say called?"
