Deceived

Last week The Liberal inserted in good faith a marriage announcement which came through the mail, and the previous week a birth notice. Mrs. James Robb, and Mr. McDowell, of Maple, inform us that both items were without foundation. We regret that the parties mentioned have been put to annoyance by some dishonorable individual who if he has any manhood, should feel ashamed of himself.

GORMLEY

Mr. W. J. Neil, a former resident of Aurora has moved his furniture into one of Elmer Homer's houses and is engaged as foreman on the Estate of William Carlisle.

After the wedding of Mrs. Carlisle the boys engaged in an old time charivari which ended rather tragically. William Rogerson who is a deserter from the army and has also served a term at Barwash for carrying five arms and stealing a car, and was under the influence of liquor, got scuffling with a number of the boys and finally got enraged and went home and got his rifle and threatened to shoot a number of the men and carried it out by shooting through the door just after Robt. Carlisle and John Ash had got inside. He then shot at the House several times and it is a miracle that no one was killed as there were about 25 women and children in the room at the time. The local police were notified but failed to catch him as he is an expert at hiding in the woods. The city police were then notified and quite a number came out and organized a search party, but before they found him he came home and got his step father to take him to Toronto in his car. He had his trial on Sept. 6, before Judge Brunton and was given a job at Kingston for 2 years.

The Confederation Life Assn. issues a new policy without medical examination for $1000, also a policy called the Family Policy, which is striking for its protection on man and his wife and many good features. Ask for the pamphlet, which explains all. This should appeal to all married men and women, because the company carries a small risk on the wife also, and costs nothing. No medical examination for the wife is required.
