

Sir Allen Aylesworth, former Minister of Justice in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Cabinet, has been appointed to the vacancy in the Canadian Senate, caused by the death of Hon. Wm. Proudfoot, K. C., of Goderich. As long as that useless body is to be continued, it is well that men of such outstanding ability as Sir Allen Aylesworth should fill the positions.

The Toronto Star has used pages of space in describing and advertising "Canada's Loveliest Child." And now that the reading public has been so well informed regarding the child and its parents, would it not be well for the Star to "let up" on this mode of advertising. Those who have seen this much advertised child, or her picture, will agree that the judges made a happy choice. But after all is said, where is the honor? If little Doris Hyde was born "lovely" that is no fault of hers. And if children are born "homely" it is no fault of theirs. It is natural that good looking children get the caressing. Do not the plain looking children need the caressing and the little acts of kindness more than those who have lovely faces?

By Lighting Pens Till 9 p.m. Egg Production Nearly Doubled.

Cause, Symptoms and Cure of Ringworm Explained—As It Is Very Contagious the Stockman Must Take Great Precautions to Prevent Its Spread.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

MOSTLY everybody who is keeping poultry wants to get eggs in winter. Generally speaking, the number of eggs gradually goes down from week to week from September to January and then there is a slow but gradual increase until March, April and May, which in Ontario are the best months for egg production.

It is unusual, and in most cases very unwise, to publish figures in regard to experiments until the material has been very thoroughly tested, but in this particular case, considering the high cost of feeds and the general scarcity of new laid eggs, we are giving the figures on a rather short test of but four weeks' duration. The results appear to be generally true in all pens tested and are in accord with results obtained elsewhere.

The increase in egg yield has been obtained by the use of electric lights, or prolonging the day. The facts of the matter appear to be that a hen's crop is too small a reservoir to hold sufficient feed for the long night. A hen, to lay, must have a surplus of feed over and above that required for body maintenance.

In these particular trials, the results of which are given below, the lights were turned on at dusk and were turned off at nine o'clock at night. The birds get their first feed in the morning at seven o'clock and a few dull mornings require lights for about one hour.

The usual feed of grain given at about four to five o'clock in the afternoon is missed or only a handful or two of grain is given to twenty-five birds, simply to keep them moving a little. The full feed is given at about eight o'clock.

The following results have been secured:—

No. of birds.	Eggs laid week beginning				Total.
	6th.	13th.	20th.	27th.
50 April hatched pullets (electric lights used)	53	150	211	250	664
50 April hatched pullets (no lights)	14	74	130	174	392
25 yearling hens (electric lights used)	76	96	89	108	369
25 yearling hens (no lights used)	62	70	60	61	253
100 March hatched pullets, all in one pen (lights used)	416	401	404	444	1,665

There are many people keeping poultry who have no electric lights. Fair to good results have been secured elsewhere by using ordinary barn lanterns. The danger of fire when using lanterns is materially increased. We have not tested these as yet but hope to have them under way soon. For electric lighting we use three ordinary bulbs for a pen of one hundred birds, or one light in a twenty-five bird pen.—Prof. R. W. Graham, O. A. C. College, Guelph.
