DRY GOODS

MRS. W. DAVIES, Richmond Hill

Weather conditions have been such, that ladies have not been eager to purchase for early spring, but brighter and sunshiny days are hovering near, and in anticipation of village requirements, "Day by day, in every way, our stocks are getting bigger and better."

The discerning buyer is ever on the alert for goods of substantial distinction, and realizing that such goods mean satisfaction, we conserve our efforts in this direction. Increased space enables us to introduce new innovations, places us in a better position than ever to supply your needs, and a glance at our frequently changed windows, a visit to our new show room, fitted and equipped in accordance with modern ideas, together with an inspection of our general range of merchandise, will readily convince you that "artistic dignity" is one of the predominating features of our business.
