The Young Village Doctor

The Masonic Hall was uncomfortably packed Friday evening, when "The Young Village Doctor" was presented by members of Victoria Square Epworth League, under the auspices of Richmond Hill Methodist S. S. Our citizens evidently expected something good, and they were not disappointed. The play was well presented, every part was well sustained, and the whole entertainment reflected much credit on the company. Recitations, piano solos, choruses and other features gave variety to the play which was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience. Mr. E. J. Hitchcock, the director, and his associates are to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment.

Davies' New Store

Recent improvements along the line of stores in Richmond Hill has been very noticeable. The latest new building is that of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davies in front of the old Lawrence residence on Yonge Street, and this store is certainly up-to-date. The store proper contains general merchandise, while the rear, which is elevated several steps, is a reserve for millinery and ladies ware. Two large plate windows adorn the front, with 48 panes of plate glass in the background. The place is electrically lighted with 3200 wats, and the large display cases equipped with latest designs in Millinery and various commodities, cannot fail to attract those who have an eye for the beautiful. We must congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Davies on their store, which would do credit to a large town or city.

Home and School Club

The Home and School Club held a most successful meeting in the Public School on Tuesday evening. Major Blainey, supervisor of Physical Training in Toronto Public Schools and our club's Vice-President, gave a splendid address on "Physical Education in the schools." Little Christine Anderson gave a Cornet solo which was much enjoyed. A social time followed. The following letter was received by the Home and School club and was much appreciated:

We, the pupils of the Public School, who have the pleasure of bringing our lunch, take this opportunity of thanking the Home and School Club for their kindness in supplying the hot drink for us at noon; also the teachers in preparing it.

We have enjoyed the Cocoa very much, even if the teachers did economize on the sugar once or probably twice. We also wish the Club every success in its work, for we realize that its one aim is the welfare of the schools.

Signed on behalf of the pupils, Kathleen Morris, John Helmkey, Walter Kendall, Evelyn Smith, Aileen Atkinson, Phyllis White.

Our Trip to the Bahamas Via New York

(By MRS. J. H. C. DURHAM)

To begin with, we never start on these wonderful trips that have been made possible for us to take advantage of during the last few years without a very great feeling of gratitude.

We left Toronto on the evening of February the Seventh by the Lehigh Valley Railway amidst snow and ice, and awoke as we neared New York to see more snow freshly spread on the landscape, so pure and lovely that one cannot overlook the blessing in that linen-like covering when all nature sleeps. We arrived safely at the Pennsylvania station, from which we walked the short distance through the subterranean passage into the Pennsylvania Hotel, and spent a couple of days in that city of sky-scrapers in which the population is over four millions, spending the most of the time amongst the great stores, and were quite comfortable when shopping two basements below the ground.

Some people have a tendency to say "bad U.S.A." and they might say that if they are thinking of the easy manner in which divorce can be brought about, but there is not any bad in which there is not some good, therefore we must give the American citizens some credit for fine feeling and ingenuity. In the first place they have allowed the remains of some of New York's early pioneers, who were interred in glebe lands in the downtown sections, together with the old tombstones, to remain as they were placed; and in the second, they have most every new invention under the sun before anyone else. Where land is scarce and high in price they build their places below the earth and in the sky, and to relieve congestion on the streets they have made a network of wonderfully well-ventilated tube railways below the streets by which passengers can get over miles of the city in a few minutes, and a system of elevated railways that can easily be reached by stairs, some of the stairways being out of the big store. These ways of rapid transit, together with the slow surface street railways and taxis standing everywhere, make the handling of the vast crowds remarkably easy.

We left New York for the Bahamas on the ninth of February on the steamer Murango of the Munson Line, an oil-burning vessel which is a very great improvement on the old-time dust-strewing coal system, and travelled down south, skirting the American shore at a distance from which the only sight of land that can be seen on the way is a glimpse of the lights on Cape Haterus when the weather is fair. Upon the entrance to the Gulf Stream on the second day out the air became noticeably warmer, so much so that we were able to loosen up our steamer rugs, and a fly which had been in hiding came out and hovered near. On the third day (Sabbath morning) the ships doors were fastened open, and most all the passengers appeared in summer attire and were able to sit outside until ten o'clock without a wrap of any kind. Very early on the following morning the lights on Abaco could be seen, which we passed slowly in and out amongst the cays until we reached near the lighthouse on Hogs Island, where, owing to the very shallow water, we had to be transferred to a smaller vessel and brought into the harbor, a distance of about two miles, in which we were met by colored urchins in boats, begging us to throw money into the translucent water so that they might earn a little by entertaining us watch them dive for it. As the vessel was being made fast to the wharf groups of people of all lines were awaiting—how cool the white dresses on the ladies and the light suits on the gentlemen looked—also the brawny negroes, of whom some were well dressed while others were careless and barefooted. Colored policemen, dressed in blue serge with white helmets, military-looking for all their bland officiousness, and other officials, gave character to the crowd as the passengers, disembarking, gave their orders about their belongings and were hurried away to the hotels and abodes in their choice of either automobiles or old-time surreys driven by colored coachmen, amidst avenues of almond trees, royal palms, and quaint white buildings, over which tall coconut palms, on which are cocoanuts in all sizes from the blossom up, wave their fern-like fronds and beautiful hibiscus and bougainvillee, in many shades of bloom, add a touch of color to the picture as they peep over the garden walls.

One cannot help contrasting the very great change in less than three days' journey from piles of snow in New York to ideal mid-summer weather. (To be continued)

York Count, Live Stock Judging Contest

The proposed Live Stock Judging Contest announced in the Press last week, will take place on Tuesday, April 3d, at 9.30 a. m. sharp. The first classes will be judged on the farm of Mr. Stevens, two miles south of Richmond Hill and the party will visit farms north on Yonge street, later in the day. All Junior Farmers and boys who never had a chance to take a Short Course are invited to attend.

Clubine—MacCharles

A quiet and pretty wedding took place on Saturday at the home of the secretary of the Baptist Home Mission, when Mildred Elizabeth, daughter of Mrs. A. MacCharles, was married to Elmer Gilbert, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Clubine, of Richmond Hill. Rev. C. J. Cameron performed the ceremony. The bride wore a becoming navy blue tailored suit, and a chic hat with French flowers. She carried a beautiful bouquet of sweet peas. There were no attendants. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Clubine will live in Richmond Hill.

York Ranger Cadets

For the concert in the Masonic Hall on Saturday evening, March 31st, in grateful appreciation of what Miss Aileen Atkinson has done for the Corps in the past, the decorating of the hall for the event will be undertaken by the O. C. The following Cadets are detailed also for special duty: Attendants at door—Cadet Corp. Allan Duncan and Cadet Corp. Donald Bewley; Ushers—Cadet Corp. David Stirling, and Cadets Lyle Grant and Enoch Batty. Cadets detailed will wear their red and white jerseys, also their Cadet caps, khaki breeches and red and white socks.

The Corps will hold an Easter-tide dance on Monday evening next in the Masonic Hall under the distinguished patronage of the field officers of the regiment. Arrangements for this event are in the keeping of Cadet Capt. Bert Grant and Cadet Lieut. Bunny White. No detail will be lacking to make the evening an enjoyable one. Will the mothers of the Cadets kindly assist in providing cake.

A financial statement of the canteen will be published later. To the following ladies is expressed the gratitude of the Corps: To Mrs. Armand Savage, for the use of a stove; also to Mrs. Newport; to Mrs. Grant, for full kitchen equipment; to Mrs. Cook, for the supply of cups; to Mrs. Russell, for the gift of coffee bags; and to Mrs. Lloyd, for confectionery donated for sale. Approximately $400 was taken in during the period, profits from which are distributed fifty-fifty to the Council and the Cadet Regimental Fund.

Grateful appreciation is also expressed to those who have during the past month given to the O. C. special donations for the furthering of the work. Expenditure for athletic equipment has been a heavy charge, but it is gradually being liquidated.

Intensive training preparatory for the 1923 inspection by Col. Barker will be instituted after the Easter holidays. The O. C. will ask the permission of the Council for the use of the Curling rink. Physical drill, athletics, and drill so necessary for the manly development of the Cadet will thus follow, and the O. C. would ask for the loyal support of the Cadet mothers so that the work may be successfully furthered.
