The Soliloquy of a Boot

(BY A. ROLFE)

Well—so it has come at last. Discarded. Cast off. Thrown away. In the vulgar tongue—"I am chucked out."

I can't, with any truth, say that I am in any way surprised. It had to happen sometime I suppose.

It isn't being discarded that I mind so much, no—it was the contemptuous manner and place where I was discarded that hurts.

On looking round I find that my resting place is in the vicinity of a garbage can which is wholly inadequate to meet the demands made upon it, for I am surrounded by quite a collection of tins and cartons all bearing vividly coloured labels. Here on my right I see a carton bearing the picture of a lovely girl, with allusions to somebody's raisins. At my left I notice a tin containing, if the smell is any criterion, the remains of some kinds of fish, while jam and Marmalade tins are quite numerous.

I am thankful that the weather is rather cool, else there would be flies galore around here.

What a breeding place. Ideal I would call it.

It seems to me that folks do some very funny things without thinking I suppose. Here is one of them.

They provide places for flies to breed, they allow them access to their homes—although they make a pretence of keeping them out by the use of screens, but they get in all the same, and swarm over everything. And then they sweat them.

It appears to me that the obvious thing to do is to do away with the breeding places. It could easily be managed by burning all refuse, or garbage, cartons etc. Tins, or cans, that have contained fruit, or fish, should be burnt out and placed in a box and covered over. This would prevent rain, or other water, from getting into them. This water, becoming stagnant, is a fine breeding place for mosquitoes and gnats.

I guess folks will be asking what business it is of mine, and what an old boot is supposed to know about such things. Not much I must confess, so I had better confine myself to my own troubles.

The people with whom I have been abiding imagine that I (a boot) have no sole, but let me say that a greater mistake was never made. Of course I've a sole, but it is not what it should be. It's not to be expected under the circumstances.

I have had to endure treatment that would cause any sole to wilt.

Oh dear! I cannot help but sigh for the days that are past.

It can hardly be imagined, seeing me now, that I occupied a prominent place in the window of the finest and most up to date boot store in the village, but it was so, and not so long ago either.

Is it any wonder that I feel my present position very acutely.

Since I have been out here with the old tins, and other things, I have been thinking that I deserved a better fate.

Ah well! Its no use worrying about things that I cannot alter.

Let me see where was I? Oh yes! I remember. I was in a boot store. A man came in and I heard him say that he wanted to look at some boots as he thought about buying a pair. It so happened that the storekeeper was just about to remedy some trifling defect he had noticed in my position in the window.

The man, who was standing near, saw me and my mate, and said that we were a fine looking pair. He said he would try us on. It so happened that we fitted him very comfortably considering our newness.

(To be continued next week.)

SELF-OILING — SELF-REGULATING

With the Strongest Tower Built

It's the "Toronto" Self-Oiling Windmill—requiring "oil only once a year". All gears operate in a bath of special oil affected by neither heat nor cold—every bearing and working part thoroughly and automatically lubricated.

If you have a "Toronto" Windmill now, you can obtain this self-oiling feature by interchanging the head and using your present wheel. Most Toronto Windmills, too, can be made absolutely self-regulating in operation. The "Toronto" Tower will stand for a lifetime because it is the heaviest, strongest and best-braced one built for any windmill. See this new Mill now—or get my booklet.
