The New Agricultural Possibilities

To The Editor of
The Richmond Hill Liberal

Dear Sir:—
In a mill called the Jay-Bee or Hamdinger Mill. I suppose the mills name originated through the inventor's name being J. B. Sedberry. It was on exhibit at Exhibition by W. H. Morley.
I had been trying hard to locate a machine of this nature for over a year and finally found one, but to my surprise, beat anything I had ever expected of it. It does the work so much better than I had expected, and not only that but it does so many more stunts that you would think it impossible for the one machine to do.

If I had been running this mill I would have called it "Three in One," as it will thresh grain, and pulverize the straw and the grain all in one operation. In saying this I mean any barley, oats or wheat can be put through at just as it comes from the field, and you can make it all into fine meal, you can make all your alfalfa and all your grain into pig-feed if you so desire. If you want it a little coarser for cattle or even coarser for horses you can adjust it that way also.

It will pulverize anything, even wood or stones as fine as wheatine for the baby. It is impossible to show the merits of this machine by writing. If I could not get another one like it, I would not take two thousand dollars for the one I purchased.

I also think that this machine has come in at the right time, as there are so many growing sweet clover to put nitrogen in the soil, but have had considerable trouble with it on account of the coarse stalks. This machine has solved the trouble, as it will grind it into meal and I think there will be a great deal more sweet clover and alfalfa grown when they get a few more of these machines installed in the country.

Anyone wanting any more literature or photos of the machine, drop a line to J. Lunau, Richmond Hill, or H.
Arnold, Gornley. To see the machine in operation at my barn, drop me a line and I am sure you will not go away disappointed.

NEWTON BROOK

Stephenson-Cornell—On Wednesday, August 27th, 1924, at her home in Newton Brook, Miss Gladys Ida Stephenson was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Grant Cornell, of Detroit, Mich. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. R. Young, in the presence of immediate members of the family. The house was prettily decorated with flowers, handsome gladioli occupying the prominent place. Many beautiful and valuable presents attested to the popularity of the bride, amongst them being a charming silver service presented by the pupils, staff and trustees of the Forest Hill school, where Miss Stephenson taught for some time. The testimonies that accompanied the gifts most heartily commended her for the charm of her personality and sterling worth of her ability. It was only because she was entering the marriage estate, that they were prepared to see her leave. Similar beautiful expressions of affection and appreciation come also from her fellow workers in the Newton Brook Methodist church. Miss Edna Stephenson was bridesmaid, and Mr.
W. J. Collins, of Toronto, was groomsman.

It's Important to Cut Silage at the Right Time

If silage is cut too green—or after the frost has taken hold of it—it won't make nearly as good or profitable feeding as if cut at just the right time.

That's where one of my "Toronto" Ensilage Cutters proves its worth. Makes you independent of a hired outfit—enables you to cut at the right time.

Enables you to refill after shrinkage, too—a feature which helps pay for the Cutter in a short while.
And it will cut your straw in the winter.

A small gasoline engine will operate this efficient Cutter. Let me demonstrate its quality features to you or ask me for free literature.
