Honor The Living

"Honor the dead" advises an exchange when referring to a bill before the Legislature to compel villages and townships to maintain the cemeteries within their boundaries, the same as cities and towns. The bill has a great deal to commend it, but if more attention was paid to many elderly people while they are alive the thoughtfulness would be more appreciated at least by them.

Oakville Milk By-Law

The Oakville Milk by-law will be changed to provide that all cream sold here must be pasteurized and all milk must be from a accredited herd. This was decided at the council meeting. The clauses will be added to the present by-law and passed before May 1, as that is the time the dairies renew their licenses for 1927.

Seeding Well On

Farmers all over York County are right in the midst of their spring seeding, and not in years has the soil been in better shape for spring work. More than 50 per cent. of spring wheat and oats are sown and one more week of dry weather would see the bulk of the grain in the ground. In some cases the farmers are only cultivating up portion of their fall wheat and re-sowing spring wheat, oats or barley, mostly the former. A fair estimate of the fall wheat ruined is said to be 25 per cent. of the entire crop. There is a plentiful supply of all kinds of fodder for cattle, and dairymen report the yield and outlook for their herds as well up to the average.

A WARNING

"What's the use of coming to Richmond Hill and having a fine supper if we only have to go out and shake it all down going over the bumps in your streets," said Mr. Rogers, district Agricultural representative speaking at the Junior Farmer's Banquet on Tuesday. "About five hundred people have been brought to the village during the year by the Department of Agriculture," said Mr. Rogers. "But I am going to have to cut you off the list if you don't fix your street." Reeve Lunau and Councillor James McLean were among the listeners and appeared to take the warning very seriously.
