Capitol Theatre

"Eloise," the Renault taxicab which is one of the important bits of property in the picture version of "7th Heaven," has been insured by Fox Films for $10,000.

This cab, which was purchased by Vice-President Winfield R. Sheehan in Paris, over two years ago, to be used in this picture, is one of the original army of French cabs used by General Gallienne in his spectacular and effective taxicab drive which saved Paris in 1914 when the German army, under Von Kluck, was but twenty-five miles from the city.

It was brought to America under guard, received in New York by a committee of French veterans, and brought across the country in a sealed car. Upon arrival in Los Angeles it was escorted to Fox Studios by local French veterans and housed in a specially constructed garage on the lot.

When Frank Borzage started work on the production, "7th Heaven," the cab was overhauled and put into running condition and has worked faithfully every day in the picture.

"7th Heaven" is based on the play by Austin Strong in which the famous taxicab drive forms one of the most thrilling sequences. Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor have the stellar roles. Albert Gran plays the part of the dissolute but lovable old driver of the gallant "Eloise."

"7th Heaven" is to have a 3 days' showing at the Capitol Theatre, North Toronto, commencing next Monday.
