The happy merchant

Never before in the history of the world has it been possible for a merchant in good credit to do so much business with so little capital locked up in stock.

One important reason for the present prosperity is, that instead of having to buy a big stock at the beginning of each season, he is now able to buy small stocks and replenish them promptly by Long Distance.

Keep your customers for miles around coming to you for whatever they need. Invent ways of inducing them to visit your store, or to order from you by Long Distance and — they tell us — you will not be seriously bothered by competition.

Testing Children for Defective Hearing

The audiometer for determining the degree of hearing retained by deaf persons is one of the recent inventions of Bell Telephone Research Engineers. It has been found that to test the hearing of children in groups, rather than individually enables them to concentrate better on the hearing test. After the telephone receivers have been adjusted on the right ears of the children they are told to write down as many numbers as they can hear as the phonograph utters them. They hear numbers coming from the telephone receiver, the intensity of each successive number group being three sensation units less than that of the preceding group. The receivers are then changed to the left ears and the test repeated. Children's hearing can be much benefitted when defects are ascertained before it is too late.
