

STRAWBERRIES WILL BE ONLY AVERAGE CROP

Apple Crop Is Promising
Present indications point to a light crop of strawberries in Clarkson and district and the Canadian housewife can hold out small hope of the fruit being as cheap as in the bumper year, 1925. A wet season last year, combined with the activities of grubs, has caused a tremendous number of plants to be winter-killed. In addition the entire fruit crop is a week or ten days behind in the Clarkson district, and it is expected to be July 1st before strawberries are available in any considerable quantities.

In the opinion of James Pengelly jr, fruit farmer in Clarkson, this year's crop will be very similar to last year's. "We had an exceptionally heavy year in 1925," he said "26 was a normal crop and last year about a 60 per cent. one. Another 60 per cent. year is what we expect." He referred to the rain of the last day or two as a "million dollar rain," saying that the present dull weather was ideal for planting strawberries. "But we need clear weather for the bees to get some work in," he declared. "Clear and warm weather."

Apples Look Good
Fruit farmers are enthusiastic over the prospects of the apple crop. While the season, as in all branches of farming, is several days behind, buds are showing plentifully, and everything points to a good season. Of the fall apples, all are showing signs of a bumper crop, excepting Mackintoshes, which are fair to light and in winter apples, Greenways are looking very well. The farmers hope for great things from them, but Spies are only fair and Baldwin should be lighter than usual.

Other fruits look promising, sour cherries, particularly Montmorencies leading the field with breaking buds and opening blossoms. A good year is expected from these. Raspberries, on the other hand, are expected to produce only a medium yield. Take all round, a season well above the five year average is confidently looked forward to.

BEDFORD THEATRE

N. Y. "AMERICAN" ACCLAIMS GREAT BRITISH NAVAL EPIC

Yamkee critic advises readers "not to miss it."

What is probably the greatest compliment ever accorded a foreign motion picture in the United States is that given "The Battles of the Coronel and Falkland Islands" showing next week at the Bedford Theatre by the William Randolph Hearst "American" of New York City, where this remarkable and mighty British film epic has just completed a sensational engagement of four weeks at the Keith-Albee theatre, the "Cameo."

Under the boxed caption "The Naval Fight in Movie," Regina Cannon, cinema critic of the "American," has the following to say about this splendid spectacle.

"There is a picture called 'The Battles of the Coronel and Falkland Islands' at the Cameo this week that you don't want to miss. It is an authentic reconstruction of the two Great War, a stirring record of intertwined defeat and victory between the British and Germans. And so gallantly each side fought and so unbiased is the celluloid account of their manoeuvres that the spectator feels only sympathy for the contenders in the seemingly futile struggle.

None of the ships that were in either of the engagements still exists, yet they were "reconstructed" so successfully for this picture that one feels he was among those present at the scene of the actual disaster. The director has done an excellent piece of work, for this is a perfect story with only a series of vivid incidents to string together to make a gripping whole.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT INTERESTED IN RADIO

No other country in the world is doing for its radio listeners what Canada has been doing for the past three years. The Federal department of Marine and Fisheries, through its radio branch, has a permanent force with a fleet of cars hunting "interference" for the hundred of thousands of radio listeners stretched across the continent from Halifax to Vancouver. In addition, the radio inspectors and their men perform countless other duties to enable the listener-in to get full value from his set.

Typical of the divisions is that with headquarters at Toronto, headed by Divisional Inspector S. J. Ellis. On the wall of Mr. Ellis's office is a large map of the Central Ontario territory dotted with colored pins. These denote sources from which complaints have been received concerning radio reception. When these complaints are recorded they are turned over to the nearest "radio interference car" which works day and night carrying specially trained investigators.

In Mr. Ellis's division there are two Oakland sedans on this work. Each carries an aerial on the roof, and built inside is a complete receiving set. A portable set is also carried for use where it is impossible to take the car. The full equipment includes portable typewriter, files, despatch case and other necessary articles. A similarly equipped Oakland, formerly used in Ontario, is doing radio duty out of St. John, N.B.

The cars work out as far as 500 miles from their headquarters, cleaning up interference complaints. Although the sturdy Oakland stationed at Toronto has gone 14,000 miles in ten months this gives only a small indication of the service it has rendered, for often it is necessary to stop at every telephone or telephone or electric-light pole in search of faulty insulators, loose wires or other causes of trouble. An average of 160 complaints a month are received in the Toronto divisional office.

Some of these come from places far up the Ferguson highway, in Northern Ontario. So the radio car covers a beat extending to Cochrane, 500 miles from Toronto, cleaning up interference on the way Northern officials of the hydro-electric power commission are instructed in the same work, since the car's far northern trips are necessarily infrequent. A number of northern radio enthusiasts also try to hunt their own trouble, and in this respect some help, of course, may be given by correspondence.

Other countries of the world, Mr. Ellis states, are becoming interested in Canada's radio interference work and are continually making inquiries about the work here. Every person in Canada owning a radio receiving set is required to pay a license fee of one dollar, and this fully covers the above service. England, according to Mr. Ellis, charges a license fee of about $2.50, but all this goes for broadcasting and not for interference work. Germany charges $12 but does not give any service such as is provided in this country by the "radio interference cars."
