A home-study class on "family and marriage" is announced by the University of North Carolina extension division.

It is sad that more vessels passed through the Suez canal in 1927 than in any previous year.

The inalienable right of young people to make love has been upheld in the highest Berlin Court. George Mueller and Anna Droglich were under contract with an employer who discharged them because he contended that their love affair interfered with his business. Now he must pay them $700, with which they will start housekeeping.

Another unusual tale of a cat that came back is reported from Chicago. Mrs. Charles S. Skelton gave her pet cat to a niece living 100 miles away and went to Europe. The cat remained with the niece but one day, and six months later reappeared at its Chicago home half starved and badly lacerated.

James Rooney of Newark, who can not read, argued with a traffic cop who stopped him for having no license plate. He showed the policeman a document which he said entitled him to drive his car. How easily it is to be mistaken is shown in a recent case in Turin, Italy. Two days after 21 men and women had "Identified" Signora Bettina Tagli as the kidnaper of two children, the real criminal was caught in Naples with the youngsters in charge. The two women bore little resemblance to each other.
