Late Mrs. David Eakin

In the passing of Mrs. David Eakin on Thursday last Unionville loses a time honored and most respected citizen, who for almost half a century has resided in and near this village.

Mrs. Eakin who was a daughter of the late William Macklin, 7 Con. Markham, was born on May 16, 1841. In 1863 she was united in marriage to one Peter Armstrong and of this union, two sons were born, William and Robert. In 1867, Mr. Armstrong was called home, and in 1880 she married Mr. David Eakin, who predeceased her many years. Mrs. Eakin was a woman of outstanding sterling qualities and a life long member of the Presbyterian Church, in which she taught Sunday school for forty years. In the declining years of her life she became afflicted with blindness, but this did not lessen her keen interest in all religious and municipal affairs. She is survived by one son, Robert Armstrong and one sister, Mrs. W. Thompson both of Unionville, also a step daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Watson, of Toronto.

HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

PROTECTION BY HOME ISOLATION

All parents are worried, from time to time, lest their children contract one or other of the communicable diseases. To a considerable extent, the spread of these diseases is due to carelessness on the part of some person. The thoughtful parent can do a great deal to reduce the prevalence of these diseases which are spread from the sick to the well.

When a child appears sick, he should be isolated from other children. The mother can tell when her child is not well, and she should isolate him for the protection of others. This may seem to be unreasonable because in the vast majority of cases, it will be found that there is nothing seriously wrong with the child, certainly no communicable disease. However, the only way to be sure that isolation is carried out on the odd occasion when it is necessary, is to isolate the sick child every time.

It may seem to throw unnecessary work upon the mother of several children to see that one is kept entirely away from the others, and to require her to boil the eating and drinking utensils of the child for five minutes, but the doing of this until there is certainty that no communicable disease is present may be the means of preventing the other children from contracting disease and, indeed, may mean the saving of lives, particularly those of infants and every young children who so frequently succumb to such disease.

Protection can only be secured if the necessary effort is made. In general, the communicable diseases are most infectious in their early days before the rash or other typical symptoms appear. It is, therefore, necessary that precautions be taken whenever a child is unwell, because this may be the signal of the onset of a communicable disease.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered by letter. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.
