LIGHTS AND SIDEWALKS FOR YONGE STREET ARE JURY'S RECOMMENDATION

APPEAL TO AUTHORITIES TO TAKE ACTION TO SAVE AWFUL TOLL OF HUMAN LIFE

That sidewalks properly lighted should be provided on Yonge Street for pedestrians was one of the chief recommendations of the coroners jury enquiring concerning the death of Keith Courtney who was killed by a hit-and-run motorist on Yonge Street just south of Langstaff on Saturday, November 17th.

The inquest opened on Thursday evening last November 22nd, when a number of witnesses were heard, but was adjourned on suggestion of the crown for one week so that further efforts might be made to track to earth the owner of the death car. The jury resumed deliberations on Wednesday night, but no new evidence was submitted although it was clearly intimated that the authorities are still very active in the case and are doing all possible to apprehend the guilty party. Several clues are in the possession of the police and may lead to an arrest any day.

Crown Attorney Moore spoke in very strong terms concerning the scoundrel motorist who had not the decency and humanity to come to the rescue of the little lad and render first aid. It was deduced in evidence that the driver of the car had come to a stop but apparently on realizing the seriousness of the accident started his car and drove away at a high rate of speed making his identification impossible by those near the accident, although chase was immediately given.

Corner Dr. Dales strongly emphasized the danger for pedestrians who walk on the highways after dark. He urged that parents should warn their children of the danger and that if pedestrians must walk on the highway he said they should be educated to walk against the traffic not with the traffic as under certain weather conditions it was almost impossible for a motorist to see them. He commended the jury for the recommendations brought in and expressed the hope that the authorities would take some heed of the awful toll of human life on our highways due to the lack of proper accommodation and regulations for pedestrians. "Surely" he said the cost of sidewalks on Yonge Street would be more than compensated by the saving of human life.

The witnesses heard at the inquest were, Highway Traffic Officer Montgomery, Constable Sid Barraclough, George Allison who was first at the scene of the accident, George Reynolds, Mr. Courtney, father of the boy who was killed, and an eight year old brother of the deceased who accompanied his brother to the Langstaff store on the night of the fatal accident and who was walking ten or twelve feet behind his brother when the accident occurred.

The finding of the jury was; "We the jury empanelled to enquire how and by what means Keith Courtney came to his death find that he met death as a result of being struck by a motor car, the driver of which is unknown. We also find that the driver of said car was driving negligently and recklessly. We would also recommend that in view of the increasing number of accidents of this nature that sidewalks properly lighted be provided on Yonge Street for the safety of pedestrians."

The personnel of the jury was; A. T. Minnis, (foreman), James Hiltz, William Davies, E. Reesor, A. A. Eden, Frank Sims, W. Middleton, and J. E. Smith.

The chief item of interest for the week is the Royal Fair. The flower display attracts the eyes of everyone. Messrs Thomas and John Frisby received a fine sum of money in prizes. They received firsts, in fall wheat, red clover, timothy, and beans. In all we believe their prizes for grains and seeds amounted to about $200.

Mr. Thos. Frisby had an excellent yield of red clover, it turning out five bushels of choice seed to the acre.

Several men are at work extending the Hydro line to Gormley. We notice among them Mr. Allen Hoover, of Gormley, who last winter served his apprenticeship as a butcher. We notice at his present task he usually wears his overcoat, while last winter while in the employ of a private party he found it invariably necessary to doff his clothes and create heat by hard work. Judging from the expression these men carry on their faces while at work, we presume to think that they enjoy their labours for Hydro Electric Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy of Toronto, were guests of Mrs. John Morton on Sunday.

The Bible class in Sunday school enjoyed a new leader on Sunday in the person of Mr. Brown.

Mr. Lechuyer is busy at present as he has several house and barns north of the Square to wire.
