Church Reclaims Deaf Members

Dr. Moffat is reported to have remarked "Ah! Another medium for the Glory of God", as he saw a steamship for the first time. This might be said also about the new scientific development known as the Church Audiphone System recently installed in St. John's Church, Brockville, Ontario. This system was developed by the Northern Electric Company specially for St. John's Church and consists of a number of "pew-stations" having a volume control switch and an earpiece conveniently fashioned in ebony and nickel. A special decorative microphone is placed on the pulpit and connected to a high quality amplifier which is out of sight. This system has brought back to the fellowship of the congregation many members who, owing to their deafness, had been for some years, unable to participate in the church services.
