Wants Gas Tax To Relieve Burden of Municipalities

REEVE J. LUNAU

Of Richmond Hill who at the County Council session this week moved a resolution asking the Provincial Government to return to York County two of the five cents gas tax collected in this County and that the same be applied to the cost of construction of roads. Interviewed by The Liberal on the subject Reeve Lunau said that to-day the burden of taxation had become so serious that something must be done. He cited the case of County taxation which is continually on the increase and said that some farmers on one hundred acres of land were paying as high as $100 County tax.

Reeve Lunau's resolution will be dealt with later in the session and whatever action the council may take it is sure to create a lot of discussion not only in York County but throughout the province as there is a growing feeling that the provincial government with so many avenues of revenue should bear more of the financial burdens for roads, old age pensions, etc., which are shouldered on the municipalities.

Reeve Lunau to The Liberal said it was not his idea to make an additional two cent gas tax in York County as reported in some papers, but that the government should return to the County two cents of the tax on every gallon sold in the County.
