Markham Township Ratepayers' Make Recommendations on Relief Problem

The following resolution was adopted at a public meeting of the citizens of Markham Township held last Saturday under the auspices of Relief Committee.

That whereas almost 100% of those on relief in the Township have expressed their desire and willingness to work and considering the difficult times through which we are all passing, we feel that this township is not in a position to give further relief (accept where there is no wage earner) and we as a body of ratepayers assembled do ask our Township Council to pass such legislation making it compulsory for those receiving relief to work in return, which the township will try to provide, for those only who are in need, and that the Council earnestly request every citizen in the Township to grow at least enough vegetables for their own use; to secure every possible days work through the summer, to make provision for their own fuel supply and in every possible way provide for the coming winter. And further, we would ask every ratepayer who can possibly provide a few days work through these trying times to do so and so help one another.

Moved by Wm. Champion, seconded by A. R. Burkholder, that this resolution be adopted. Carried.

Farmers who have field stones that could be used on Township roads please notify the Secretary of Relief Committee. Telephone Wm. Champion, Unionville 1918.

Congratulations from their numerous friends were received by Mr. and Mrs. David Yeamans, Lot 27-28, Con. 3, Agincourt, on Monday, March 27th, the auspicious occasion being the 54th anniversary of their wedding.

As was the custom, generally, "way back" fifty years ago, the happy couple were married at the residence of Andrew Paterson, Kennedy Road, by the Rev. Malcolm McGillivray, minister of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church Bendale, Scarborough, at that time. Mr. Yeamans was the son of David Yeamans, whose ancestors settled in Scarborough about 125 years ago, whilst his bride was Joan Bertram, daughter of Andrew Bertram of Agincourt.

The history of Scarborough's pioneer families can only date back to the arrival of the first white settler, David Thomson, who with his wife, Mary Glendinning and their four children arrived at what is now known as Bendale from "Muddy York" in March 1796. Later when the U. S. A. declared war against Britain, there arrived from the States a number of United Empire Loyalists, who refused to serve with the rebels, sacrificed their holdings in United States and came to Canada.

Prominent amongst the latter was David Yeamans and his son, William, the latter a husky youth of 17 years, who following an adventurous career, arrived at New Brunswick from the Dutch settlement of Wilmington in Pennsylvania.

It was not cowardice which forced the Yeamans to Canada, for history records that young William and his father entered the fray, the former having served with General Brock at the memorable battles of Queenston Heights and Lundy's Lane. Young William Yeamans was the grandfather of the present David Yeamans of Agincourt.

William often told his grandson of the fine character of General Brock during the fights. "He never told his soldiers to go on, but was always to the fore, shouting 'Come on.' He was ever in the lead," he said.

Following the war of 1812, David Yeamans and his son, William, like most of the U.E.I. stock, turned to husbandry and took up land in Vaughan Township. They were not quite pleased with the location, no doubt a Crown grant for services rendered, and disposing of it, moved to Scarborough Township. Here William settled on Lot 27-8, Con. 3, then a tract of bush, which he and his father purchased from Nicholas McDougall.

Here David Sr. died and William married. One of William's children, David, married a Miss Leopard, the father and mother of the present David Yeamans of Agincourt. Mrs. Yeaman's father, Andrew Bertram, came to Canada from Scotland and settling in Scarborough married Margaret daughter of James Glendinning, the latter being a relative of Mary Glendinning, wife of David Thomson, the first white settlers in Scarborough. So sparse was the population in those days that it is recorded on the grave of Mrs. Thomson. "She passed the first seven months, after their settlement, without seeing a woman, and the first she saw was an Indian."

Andrew Bertram served at the time of the Fenian Raids and was with the famous Scarborough Company when it was severely tested at Niagara at the time of the historic St. Alban's Raid. So successful was he at the plough, that on March 26th, 1844, he was judge of the first ploughing match, held under the auspices of the Scarborough Agricultural Society at Archie Muir's farm, Kingston Road.

Mr. Yeamans is a noted plowman, too, his skill being such, that he was appointed a judge at many matches of importance.

Time has taken a hand in shaping into modernism the crude methods of farming and marketing since the happy couple were children. The winding narrow Kennedy Road is now a highway. Teams of oxen have been substituted by the more up-to-date automobile.

The gossiping around the blacksmith's door as ploughs were being forged into shape for the famous ploughing matches is now substituted by sitting at home, and "listening-in" on the radio. Yet memories of happy childhood days often flicker through the minds of Mr. and Mrs. Yeamans as they sit on the verandah, looking out on the well kept farm lands once bush cleared by their pioneer ancestors.

Mrs. Yeamans, who is in splendid health, celebrated her 79th birthday on Feb. 17th, 1933. Mr. Yeamans health is fair and he is quite spry at the age of 81. The couple have three children, Frederick on the old homestead, Mrs. J. Reesor of Edgeley, Miss Emily at home and six grandchildren. Mrs. W. Miller, Toronto, is a sister of Mr. Yeamans.

Mr. Jas. Muirhead's vocal solos, "My Ain Wee Hoose" and "At The End of The Road," were enthusiastically received.

Miss Mildred Forfar gave an illustrated address on "Esther" at Knox Presbyterian Y.P.S. service last Sunday evening.

Miss Ruth Large was a guest with Toronto friends over the week-end.

LOCAL FACTORY BUSY

Some time ago we visited the Richmond Hill Knitting Mills and reported that we found Richmond Hill's newest industry busy and thriving. Again this week we visited the factory and judging by appearances everything is going fine and the industry is progressing. The plant has been in operating for about fifteen months and on Wednesday when we dropped in a staff of seven was employed. Mr. William Davies, the proprietor, expressed optimism concerning the future and satisfaction with the progress being made despite the difficult times. The firm specializes in the manufacture of men's and children's knitted goods and now are selling to some of the leading retail establishments of Canada. This is evidence that the products of Richmond Hill Knitting Mills must compare favorably with that of old established firms, both as to quality and price. A display of the products of the factory will be made this week end at Davies' Dry Goods Store.
