Trustees of Unionville Public School have decided not to admit any beginners at Easter of this year. Their decision was reached when they found that the school is filled to capacity now, and beginners at Easter would mean that more seats would have to be purchased and the attendance would be more than the school can conveniently accommodate. By waiting until Sept., before beginners are allowed to enter, the section gains in not having to buy more seats, (since by then the Principal hopes that the present entrance class will have graduated). Moreover the school will not be so overcrowded and the pupils now preparing to write will not have to share the teaching they now receive with beginners.
