ASKS FOR BETTER SERVICE ON RADIAL CARS

The Editor, Richmond Hill Liberal, Sir:—

A recent out-of-town visitor to the Hill, arriving in winter clothes, and chilled to the bone, asked: "How do you ever endure your radial service?"

It was a fine advertisement for our transportation facilities and voiced general opinion much too prevalent for the good of the municipalities served (?) by the unfortunate stepchild of the T.T.C.

"Changeling" would indeed be a better term than stepchild. Under Hydro management we had comfortable, well-heated cars, quick service, courteous management, and provision for the large proportion of passengers who do not wish to travel in a reek of tobacco smoke.

However, having made that initial blunder of having the T.T.C. operate the line, taxpayers should see to it that before a few more scores of citizens along the route are goaded into motor-car transportation, certain essential improvements are made in the running of the road.

The first is an adequate heating system. On a forty-minute run heat requirements are conditioned by the weather, not by date or season. If we have winter temperatures in Oct.—or even in September—the cars should be warmed accordingly. The outlay for heating in emergencies would be slight and temporary, whereas the illness resulting from such a chilling as passengers have been subjected to recently may well be not only expensive but permanent.

Even in midwinter, in a frigid car, it is a common experience for passengers who ask for the turning on of heat to be told that the apparatus is not working, or that it is impossible to supply more heat.

A car should leave the barns in such condition as that. Too much heat is preferable to too little, for it should always be possible, if necessary to let down a window from the top.

And that suggests a second serious defect in our present cars: the absolute lack of ventilation. Winter and summer alike cars are sent out with what are practically sealed windows. This is another piece of slovenly management.

In addition to the bad air and the cold, one has to endure the reek of strong tobacco. It is a very rare thing for a car to make the trip either to or from Toronto without one or more men smoking. The motormen pay no attention to this abuse, unless specifically asked by some passenger to put a stop to it. Most patrons of the road indignantly endure a good deal of discomfort rather than make themselves conspicuous by policing the car. Nor should this be necessary. The smokers well know that they are defying regulations, but the T.T.C. would do well to hang in the middle of the car a non-smoking notice as conspicuous as the one describing the delights of their coach service, etc.

Motormen should not be expected to collect fares, run the car, and police it. But if a plainclothes man were put on occasionally with orders to eject anyone found smoking, and leave him to pay his fare over again on the next car, this nuisance would be rapidly eliminated.

There is no use blaming citizens for buying cars and playing the Good Samaritan with their friends as long as we get the wretched service at present provided.

"SERVICE, PLEASE!"

WOULD ORGANIZE TO GIVE HELP AND ENCOURAGEMENT TO DISTRESSED

Editor of The Liberal, Dear Sir:—

Has it ever occurred to you or to your readers that we as individuals are missing a great opportunity for public service in these days of stress and strain? I know that our municipalities are making a fairly good job of looking after the unemployed in providing them with the necessities of life in the line of food and clothing. What I have in mind is that a group of people throughout the district could perform a wonderful service by organizing and providing these families with a few of the little extras of life which would add much joy and happiness to those homes now under the cloud of economic distress. A few treats not necessarily lavish would do much to brighten the lives of those hardest hit by the present unemployment situation and some plan for the entertainment and amusement of the people. Could something like this be worked out? I just pass along this idea for yourself and your readers to turn over in their minds with the hope that some public-spirited individual or organization will take the lead in some such line of action during the coming winter.

"INTERESTED"

COMMENDS A.A.A. FOR CHRISTMAS TOY EFFORT

Editor of The Liberal, Dear Sir:—

Let me commend the Richmond Hill A.A.A. through the columns of your valuable paper for their public-spirited undertaking in entering the Buckingham Christmas Toy contest. The aim is a worthy one and the A.A.A. deserve the support and help of the people of this entire district in such worthy work.

I only wish our communities had more organizations as full of public spirit as the A.A.A. and I am sure the world would be a better place in which to live. It is very encouraging when organizations such as this are willing to give of their time and effort to such a worthy cause as that of trying to bring joy and gladness to the kiddies at Christmastide.

I with the organization every success and I hope the citizens generally will respond wholeheartedly to the appeal. Come on friends and readers of The Liberal, save your Buckingham cigarette and tobacco packages for the A.A.A. and the kiddies.

BOOSTER.

SUGGESTS IMPROVEMENTS IN RADIAL SERVICE

Editor, The Liberal, Sir:—

In the humblest spirit of helpful and constructive criticism to help the people's railroad on North Yonge St., weather the storm of the present economic depression, I make the following suggestions: (a) the elimination of at least half the present unnecessary switches which considerably slows up the service and which I can see serve no useful service; (b) erection of some lighting at some of at least the most important stops in the northern district such as at Langstaff. I trust the radial management will look into those matters and if there is any reason why such could not be done I would be very pleased to learn of it through your valuable paper. Thanking you for the space, I am,

RADIAL PATRON.

CONTOURS OF GRAVES SHOULD NOT BE MOLESTED SAYS WM. PERKINS BULL

Works of beautification, undertaken though they may be from a sense of high public spirit, often become works of desecration when seen through the eyes of the historian. A case in point is found in the effort to restore historic burying grounds and, in this way, to honor the memory of our forefathers.

In several cases in Peel, for example, attempts have been made, or are being made, to clean up old cemeteries, a worthy object in itself. When plans call for the levelling of all mounds, however, and for the removal of wooden, iron, or other palings, or railings, or other fences which surround any grave, or family plot, so as to produce a lawn-like surface, the grass on which may be cut cheaply, the result is unworthy of our generation.

These are the views expressed by Wm. Perkins Bull, K.C., author of the forthcoming history of the County of Peel. Mr. Bull further points out that although the restoration of old cemeteries is a work of the highest importance, the elimination of the contours of graves should not be considered, even for a moment.

"A grave which is changed in its visible contour is no longer the grave in which the pioneer was laid to rest" says Mr. Perkins Bull. "Therefore all works of restoration should be carried out in such a way that the beauty of the scene will be synchronized with the historic associations of the burying ground. Briars, woods and rank grasses should never have been allowed to grow and should immediately be torn out. Broken-down outside fences should be repaired, but they should not be replaced by cheap, modern constructions of wire. Fences enclosing individual graves or family plots should not be molested in any way, for surely where these exist they do not encircle the graves of the least important citizens of their day.

"Pathways between graves should be sown to lawn, but there should be no pulling about of headstones, simply to create geometrical order. Not one old grave should be disturbed in any way, for it is in its present state that true beauty lies. It is not simply a question of historic association, but a question of our right to do so. Level an old mound and something is taken away from the background of our countryside, from our contacts with the past and from actual family associations which never can be brought back. Restore our pioneer burying grounds, by all means—but do not make the graves the victims of modern insistence on the virtue that is presumed to exist in sympathy."

These comments from Mr. Perkins Bull are called forth by the announcement of plans to restore many old and neglected cemeteries and are in the nature of a warning, lest in our struggle to attain orderliness we may lose the beauty to be found in old and dear things.

"Let us safeguard our fathers' sepulchres," says Mr. Perkins Bull. "The sons and daughters of Peel, returning home from time to time will be broken-hearted to see what resembles a bowling green in place of the mouldering heap of earth" which they remember as marking the exact spot in which a father or mother is buried."

"MORNING GLORY" HAS EVERYTHING

All the world loves a lover, and all the world adores a fighter. These are two reasons why all the world will love RKO-Radio Pictures' "Morning Glory," which will be at the Capitol Theatre next week.

There are other reasons: The star-studded cast headed by dynamic Katharine Hepburn, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Adolphe Menjou. The sparkling direction by that master megaphonist, Lowell Sherman. And the play by brilliant Zoe Akins.

"Morning Glory" is the story of a fighter, and a dramatic romance with New York's colorful Broadway as its background.

It presents Miss Hepburn, the screen's most interesting personality, as a girl who believes in herself, who knows she has the talents to become a great actress. In stirring fashion, it depicts her courageous fight to win recognition, with its disappointments, its heartbreaks, and its final triumph.

It gives young Fairbanks one of the strongest roles of his career, as a young theatrical producer who believes in the struggling girl, and eventually teaches her the meaning of love, and it presents Menjou as a fascinating man-of-the-world.

"Topsy," said the mistress to the maid, "just look at this table. Why, I can write my name in the dust."

"It must be wonderful," commented the colored maid. "Ah wishes Ah was educated."—Christian Science Monitor.

Valet—"Sir, your car is at the door."

Master: "Yes, I hear it knocking."—Tennessee Mugwump.
