HUMOR IN THE CEMETERY

Worcestershire affords us another example of humor in a churchyard. There is no mistaking the sentiment here:

An old man in Prince Edward County, who was left in charge of cattle during winter on a lonely island in Bay of Quinte wrote his epitaph in case anything happened him, as follows:

"Here lies the body of Old Dick Grant Nobody'll cry for nobody can't. And as for his soul and how it fares Nobody'll ask for no body cares."

Here lies a poor woman Who always was tired For she lived in a house Where no help was hired. Her last words on earth were: 'Dear friends, I'm going Where washing aint done, Nor sweeping, or sewing.

And everything there Is exact to my wishes, For there they don't eat There's no washing of dishes. I'll be where loud anthems Will always be ringing, But having no voice I'll get clear of the singing.

Don't mourn for me now, Don't mourn for me never—I'm going to do nothing For ever and ever.

O-ho, quoth the devil, it's my John A. Combe.

A fragrant example of the contradiction of the Psalms' dictum on the blessedness of man with a quiver full of offspring is the following:

"Of children in all she bore twenty-four Thank the Lord there will be no more."

Another reads: Here lies the body of James Robinson And Ruth his wife. "Their Warfare is accomplished."

It is not authenticated that Oliver Goldsmith wrote the following:

Here lies poor Ned Pardon from misery freed, Who long was a bookseller's hack; He led such a damnable life in this world

I don't think he will ever come back. Or Shakespeare the following on an old ten per cent money lender; Ten in the hundred he's here engraved.

It's a hundred to ten his soul is not saved.

If any man ask who lies in this tomb

There is even a note of exultation in: Here lies my wife in earthly mould Who, when she lived, did naught but scold.

Peace, wake her not, for now she's still. She had, but now I have my will.

The happiness of married life is more often the theme however: That Dick loved Sue was very true, Perhaps you will say, What's that to you? That she loved Dick; and it is this That Dick loved Sue, and that made bliss.

The virtues of some women are left to our imagination.

Here are deposited the remains of Mrs. Ann Floyer the beloved wife of Richard Floyer of Thistle Grove in this Parish Died on Thursday the 8th of May 1828 "God has chosen her as a pattern for the other angels."

Equally complimentary was William Lynne:

Might I ten thousand years enjoy my life I could not praise enough so good a wife.

Here lies the body of Mary Gwynnee, Who was so very pure within She cracked the shell of earthly skin And hatched herself a cherubim.

Of course the writer did not mean anything of the kind. Cherub would not answer so he doubted Mary's personality on the other side of the grave and perpetrated an atrocious rhyme.

Some terse epitaphs more fitting for this age of hurry have been discovered. For instance: "He was."

This corpse Is Tommy Thorpe shortened to Thorpse's corpse

PUDDLE SWISHERS

A pedestrian whose very best Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes were splashed by a passing motor car and who, under the impression he had heard one of the occupants laugh at his plight, threw a stone through the car window and injured a woman, has been convicted in local police court of assault. It is possible to sympathize with him in the jam in which he now finds himself and at the same time admit that the law on the point is sound. Magistrate Burbridge, no matter what his personal opinions of the incident may have been, had to register the conviction, in view of the defendant's admission of guilt. The magistrate took occasion to point out, however, that motorists who splash pedestrians are themselves guilty of assault—which is an interesting bit of information.—Hamilton Spectator.

EASY TO MAKE A MISTAKE

A. A. Heaps tells a pleasant story about Senator Robert Forke at the time he was minister of immigration. The minister who was registered at a Winnipeg hotel, was called up on the telephone by a man who desired an appointment that afternoon. As well as Mr. Forke could make out, over a rather poor 'phone connection, this man and some associates desired to bring 3,000 Jews into the country. Mr. Forke was taken slightly aback by the proposal, but he decided he would wait until the man arrived to go into details, especially as he had some difficulty in hearing his exact words.

In the meantime he thought he would like to have some outside advice on the matter, so he called up A. A. Heaps, one of the few Jews in public life at the moment, and inquired if he had heard of this proposed mass immigration of Hebrews into Canada.

Mr. Heap was as nonplussed as the minister had been.

"You had better come over and meet these people this afternoon," suggested the minister of immigration.

"I'll be there," promised Mr. Heaps. When he arrived, the deputation was already in conversation with Mr. Forke. On Mr. Heaps' arrival the former minister of immigration burst out into peals of laughter.

"I'm sorry to have brought you over here for nothing," he said. "What these gentlemen would like to do is to import 3,000 ewes into Canada for breeding purposes."

BEAUTY AND BLOODSHED IN THE DAYS OF YORE

One of the most beautiful and dainty islands called on by the Canadian National Steamships "Lady" liners is that of St. Lucia, in the British West Indies. Its greatest length is only 27 miles but its history has been an exceptionally vivid one. Here is what Sir Frederick Treves, Bart., says about it in his book "The Cradle of the Deep:"

"There can hardly be a spot that, for its size, has played a more stirring part in the history of arms or in the chronicles of the British navy and army. There is no dot of land that has been so desperately fought over, so savagely wrangled for, as this too fair island. St. Lucia is the Helen of the West Indies, and has been the cause of more blood-shedding than was ever provoked by Helen of Troy. Seven times was it held by the English, and seven times by the French. For no less than 150 years it was the arena of the most bitter and deadly strife. Whenever war broke out between England and France, the call that at once rang out in the West was ever the same: 'To St. Lucia! To St. Lucia!'"

Here and There

The first event in the celebration of the Centennial of the City of Toronto, to be held this year, took place at the Royal York Hotel in the closing week of 1933 when Mayor Stewart handed out loaves of "Centennial" bread to a large crowd of interested recipients.

Emile St. Goddard and Leonard Seppala, heroes of many hotly fought Dog Derbies, will fight it out again in the Quebec Dog Derby of February 23-25 next to be held in Quebec City. Many other teams have already registered and special training events for the big show are being held.

A tip for the encouragement of the younger ski generation is given by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the company's inauguration of a special school age ski excursion at low rates to the Laurentians just outside Montreal. The special was heavily patronized by the youngsters.

Statistics recently issued by the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics show that the safest way to travel is by railroad. In a year's operation of Canadian and United States railroads only one passenger was killed out of a total of 469,048,529 persons carried a total of 16,941,246,109 miles.

The old belief that women cannot wear high heels without injury to posture and health was described as "bunk" by J. S. Brower, shoe expert of Milwaukee, delegate to the National Shoe Retailers Association convention recently held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

A Canadian inter-collegiate ski meet, unique development in Eastern Canada as far as skiing is concerned, will be held at the Seigniory Club, Montebello, end of January. Toronto University, Ottawa University, McGill and St. Patrick's College in Ottawa are among the collegiate teams to be represented.

Snow shovels and twenty below in many places in Canada are replaced by mashes and 55 above at Victoria B.C., these days where the sixth annual midwinter golf tournament swings into action at the Royal Colwood Course February 19-24. Enquiries and early entries from ardent golfers indicate that again this year the tournament will be a big success.
