A woman in Quebec has never seen a movie film and scoffs at the idea that pictures can move and talk. Because of the character of so many of these productions, the Globe thinks the rather widespread opinion will be that she hasn't missed a great deal.

Junior Farmers Make Interesting Tests of Crops

On Tuesday evening, July 17th, the Junior Farmers of York County along with a number of farm owners and operators, gathered at the home of Mr. F. Gee, Gormley, to examine crop and fertility tests being conducted on his farm and on several farms in the vicinity of Victoria Square.

"It is eminently fitting that this meeting should take place in York County," said Prof. Henry G. Bell, Associate Professor of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College, in an address before this group. "History records that about 100 years ago one of the first instances of tractor plowing took place in this district within a few miles of the meeting, namely near Pickering. In this vicinity, one John Prout, an Englishman of comparative wealth and splendid agricultural training, settled near Pickering. On this land he put into practice many of the new ideas put out by what is now Rothamsted Station, which methods were engaging the attention of leading English farmers. Some of the earliest applications of commercial fertilizers were made at this time. Prout demonstrated that successive crops of cereals could be grown on heavy clay land if it is drained well, and properly fertilized. With these new ideas of soil management, he coupled the idea of tractor plowing. On his level fields he placed a steam engine at one side and with the aid of long cables and pulleys he employed the first tractor plowing apparatus in Canada."

"Then, again, the comparative superiority of the crops of York county this year warrant special attention to this section," said Prof. Bell.

On Mr. Gee's farm there was standing an excellent crop of oats, part of which had been treated with 0-12-5 fertilizer at 250 lbs. per acre, and part with 2-12-6. It is too early, of course, to predict yields, but considerable advantage over neighboring crops was seen in the growing crop.

The group called at the W. Brooks farm, Gormley, where last fall a replicated series of plots were laid down with winter wheat. The severities of winter weather were too much for the wheat and it was necessary to reseed with oat early in the spring. Many farmers fear that if winter killing necessitates reseeding of fall wheat, fertilizers added to it are lost. There is abundant evidence on the Brooke farm to convince the most sceptical that this is not the case. In this test 1/4 acre blocks side by side across the field are treated with 0-14-6, 2-12-6, 2-12-10, 2-12-14, and a block is left without any fertilizer. This is repeated 4 times with an idea of overcoming the natural variation in soil fertility. As in the other fields, it is too early to pass an opinion on relative merits of the different mixtures, but it was quite evident from the thicker, stronger stand of oats where fertilizers had been applied and from the higher crop, that a considerable difference in yield is bound to result.

A week ago the fertilized blocks were well in head and the unfertilized blocks were just starting. Today the whole field is in head but the heads of the fertilized blocks are much further filled with good heavy grain than are those on the unfertilized blocks.

An additional observation in the oat crop was that there was considerably less smut in the fertilized than in the unfertilized. Apparently the strengthening of the crop gained by the fertilizer, helped it resist this disease which makes such attacks on Canadian grain crops.

R. E. White, Agricultural Representative of York County, who was in charge of the trip, called the attention of the audience to the necessity of more attention to treating seed for control of smut. Definite counts showed as high as 25% loss in oat crops due to smut which is readily controllable by seed treatment.

An excellent barley test was seen on the farm of Mr. F. Brumwell, Gormley. Here similar differences were noted and an additional observation of importance was made that the heads of the barley on the fertilized sections were sufficiently far advanced that they were hanging down due to increased weight, while those of the unfertilized areas had not filled to the same extent.

When darkness made field observation impossible, the group again assembled at the home of Mr. F. Gee, where Professor Bell gave an address on newer things in fertility maintenance, which address was illustrated with a splendid set of lantern slides. In the scheme of fertility demonstrations over 5000 such plots have been conducted throughout the province within the last 5 years. York County has shared since about 100 plots have been located in this area.

Mr. R. J. Bryden, fieldman of the Dept. of Chemistry, described in some detail the treatments that had been put on the various blocks and discussed the essential stores of fertility that tests revealed in the different soils.

Mr. E. K. Hampson, of the Potash Company of Canada, complimented the York County farmers highly on the excellency of their crops and farming methods and pointed out the necessity of more attention to the science of farming as well as the art.
