Science Reveals Increase in Tuberculosis

Although the death-rate from tuberculosis has decreased 65 per cent. since the inception of the National Sanitarium Association thirty-nine years ago, the number of persons needing hospital treatment has increased. This statement may sound paradoxical but the explanation is that, with the application of scientific knowledge and the establishment of government travelling clinics, together with the efforts of other health agencies in different municipalities, a larger number of tubercular children and adults has been revealed and they must be cared for.

"This never-ending fight" for lives and the return to health and strength is being carried out at the Toronto Hospital for Consumptives, the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives and the Queen Mary Hospital for Consumptive Children. It is a fact, however, that few of the patients are able to pay anything toward their keep and not one pays the entire cost of maintenance. Voluntary contributions from warm-hearted friends have, heretofore, ensured the carrying on of this work of mercy and the three hospitals must depend largely upon such gifts if the work is to continue. Will you please lend your aid by sending a contribution for the cause to the National Sanitarium Association, 222 College Street, Toronto.

Humber Summit Gets Sidewalk

As a result of the recent automobile accident in which 12 year old Eddie Timmerman lost his life, and the driver, W. A. Hornick of Toronto, is facing a manslaughter charge, a sidewalk sponsored by the North York Township Council and supervised by W. O. Duncan, Road Commissioner is at present in course of construction on the Woodbridge road in the greenhouse district at Humber Summit, where vehicles traffic is heavy and pedestrians are numerous. The walk will extend one mile south from Wm. Green & Son Greenhouse.

Woodbridge Tax Rate Down Five Mills

Woodbridge Council for 1935 completed its term of office on Monday night last with Reeve McKenzie and all members present which include Councillors J. G. Whitmore, Andrew Frost, N. G. Wallace and Jack Watson. In reviewing the council's activities for the year it was shown that a good surplus is in the Treasury with a five mills reduction on the tax rate. This in face of the fact that considerable money had been expended on improvements especially sidewalks, is most creditable. It is not known definitely if their will be an election for 1936 council. Rumor has it afloat that their might be. We'll see.

The Late Mrs. (Dr.) Pinkerton

The funeral of the late Mrs. Pinkerton took place on Friday afternoon from her residence to St. John's Oak Ridges Church with interment in St. John's Cemetery. Deceased had been almost an invalid after suffering from a stroke over three years ago and Tuesday evening suffered another very serious stroke and passed away Wednesday afternoon. The late Mrs. Pinkerton before her marriage was Miss Newberry of Jefferson. She taught school at the King Public School for six years and has since her marriage resided in the village. Surviving are her husband, two sisters and two brothers. Deepest sympathy is given to Dr. Pinkerton and brothers and sisters.

We are glad to learn Mrs. Robsof, who underwent a serious operation a week ago, is progressing favorably.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. F. Carver in the death of her sister last week at Teston.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

THE only trouble with making pictures of Christmas doings is that the day goes so fast. Before we know it, chances for rare shots have come and gone—gone, some of them, never to return, next year or ever. For babies will grow up and friends will move away.

So plan now for a few good shots this Christmas, shots that will mean, inescapably, Christmas.

To do the job to call on all of your snapshotting talent into play. For there'll be interiors as well as outdoor shots, daytime and nighttime pictures, close-ups and long shots.

For example:

Holly wreaths at the door and in the windows. Shoot them from the outside, at night, with lights arranged to bring out their full importance. A time-exposure from the outside, shooting in through the window at the lighted room, will give you a fine silhouette of the wreath in the window. Ask one of the youngsters to stand very still at the window during the exposure; that will add the necessary "human interest".

Trimming the tree. This will probably be a long shot, taken from far enough away to show the whole tree and the busy decorators. In all likelihood, a photoflash-type bulb will be your best reliance for this one.

Hanging the stockings at the mantel. A photoflash or photoflood type lamp in the fireplace (the fire, itself, we hope, being out) will illumine the figures of children as they hang up their hopeful stockings. Be sure that the direct rays of the light do not strike your camera's lens.

A close-up of the piled-up gifts, before the children—or the grown-ups, for that matter—attack them. This will be another photoflood picture. If there are no people in the picture, you can close down the aperture of your lens and give a longer exposure than usual—half a minute or so, depending on the amount of the light and its distance from the centre of the picture.

Then, of course, a picture of the beautiful confusion of present-opening time. Don't let the tidy housekeeper deter you from getting the scene as it actually is. The more littered, the better.

If there are children, get a snap of each surrounded with his gifts. And there's no reason why every other member of the family shouldn't have the same treatment. If Sister has a new wrist-watch, see to it that it shows very plainly.

If yours is a neighborhood where the folks make much of outside decorations, with illuminated trees and such, you'll find that time-exposures of a minute or so will give you excellent pictures of the various lawn displays. Here, as in practically all shots, a tripod will come in very handy.

And if carol singers come your way, get a shot of them busily carolling away. A photoflash type lamp, in a hand-battery holder, will make this shot easy.

No—you needn't spend the whole time with camera in hand. But a few, well-chosen snaps will be very much worth the few minutes they require. Far better to spend those few minutes than lose the fleeting, unique opportunities altogether. Right?
