"Bless you, No-I don't mind being called old-fashioned. 'Cause I really am old, you see. Older'n anybody-even your grandmaw an' grandpaw-can remember. How old? Well, now you've got me there-I don't rightly know just for sure. Got it written down somewhere—but it's just sorta slipped my mind. But as far as being old-fashioned, Santy's real proud of the distinction.

But don't you go callin' me an institution, like I was an orphan asylum or something. Old Santa doesn't like thatno siree. You don't think an institution could remember what every little boy and girl in the whole wide world wants for Christmas, do you? Takes a real live body to do that. An I got a good memory too. Yes Sir Say little fellow, weren't you here to see me about twenty-eight or thirty years ago?.....No?......Well now I reckon it must have been your paw. Same hair an' eyes as you, only he wanted a Noah's Ark 'stead of a streamlined train.

Sure.....I remember all your maws and paws. Your grand-daddies too for that matter. An I'll probably be asettin' right here to talk to your little uns too.....an' their little uns when they come along.

'Cause old Santy'll come a-drivin' back year after year. Long as there's any love an' sweetness left in the world.... and any children to climb on his lap an' whisper in his earan' hang up their stockings on the night before Christmas.....just as long as there's any joy and sweetness left in the world."

And so in the true spirit of Christmas as summed up by our good old life-long friend Santy Claus, THE LI-BERAL, says to-day to all our reader friends an' we are proud to call you all.....friends—we say in just the good old-fashioned way from the bottom of our hearts,
