News and Information For the Busy Farmer

Breeds for Crate Feeding

The best breeds of poultry for crate feeding are the general purpose types such as Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes, or the heavy types such as Jersey Giants.

Crate Feeding Poultry

Modern methods of production have so simplified poultry raising that it has been made possible for poultry meat to become an every day article of diet. Too much of Canada's poultry is marketed in an unfinished condition, consequently dry and tough and, too frequently, poorly dressed. Poultry to be appetizing must be well fleshed and properly dressed.

There are two principal methods of finishing poultry—pen-feeding and crate feeding. The former method is generally used for turkeys and waterfowl, the latter for chickens of all ages. Some feeders follow the practice of pen feeding for a couple of weeks and then "finish off" in crates. Batteries are commonly used in intensive plants, but for ordinary farm use crates are equally satisfactory and are inexpensive. The quarters where the birds are to be "finished" should be dry, cool and well ventilated, and the birds should have quiet and freedom from excitement.

The general purpose of heavy weight breeds are best suited for crate feeding and best results can be expected only where strong, vigorous, sturdy type birds are used. Before starting the finishing period, the birds should be dusted with flowers of sulphur or some other suitable preparation to ensure their freedom from lice.

Anemia in Pigs

Reports are often received of the large mortality among little pigs prior to the age of weaning. The little pigs which have usually been doing well and putting on weight suddenly become unthrifty. They lose weight, the hair becomes rough and the pigs appear listless. Diarrhoea is a common symptom. If examined they are found to be very pale and anemic which is most apparent in the white of the eyes and in their bloodless ears, and by the absence of a healthy pink colour from the skin. Deaths due to anemia are frequent.

This condition is due to deficiency of iron in the blood and is particularly serious in larger piggeries where the pigs are on a carefully balanced ration.

The treatment used at the Kapuskasing Experimental Station has proved very satisfactory and consists of a powdered "reduced iron" which can be purchased at any drug store. Absolute accuracy of dosage is not important, and for practical purposes the quantity can be roughly measured as the amount which can be piled up on a small Canadian one cent piece. Each pig is caught, the iron placed on the back of the tongue, the pig marked and put back in the pen; this is repeated every other day, starting when the pigs are 4 to 5 weeks old until they are three weeks old or rather as soon as they start to eat from a small trough.

CHRISTMAS IN THE UNITED CHURCH

On Saturday afternoon last the Primary and Beginners' Sunday School held their Christmas Tree Concert. The program given by the wee ones was much appreciated by a crowded audience of mothers and friends. Afternoon tea was served and a delightful social hour was had at the close. Mrs. Sayers and her co-workers received hearty congratulations.

On Monday evening the officers and teachers were "At Home" to the Main Sunday School. The Hall was again crowded and an excellent program rendered, with the Superintendent, Mr. Rand Phipps, in charge. Refreshments were served, and a thoroughly good time was enjoyed by everybody.

Large congregations were present both morning and evening of Sunday last, and entered heartily into the spirit of the day. The choice musical numbers of the choir and the inspiring messages of the pastor were greatly enjoyed.

In the afternoon the Sunday School held their White Gifts Day, with the result that about twenty-four baskets were sent out to the homes of the needy in the neighborhood.

A BIT "RATTLED"

A very nervous young man called at the house of the Dean. When the butler appeared, he said:

"Excuse me, but is the Bean dizzy tonight?"

Uncle and niece stood watching the young people dance about them.

"I'll bet that you never saw any dancing like that back in the nineties. eh, Uncle?"

"Once—but the place was raided."

THE SINGING OF CAROLS

The custom of singing carols is still maintained in Italy—indeed, on the continent caroling at Christmas is almost universal—and particularly in Rome, where, during the season of Advent, Pifferari may be seen and heard performing their novenas.

These pilgrims, who, by the way, are shepherds from the Calabrian mountains, annually flock to Rome at this season. Their picturesque costume is thus described: "On their heads they wear conical felt hats, adorned with a frayed peacock's feather or a faded band of red cords and tassels. Their bodies are clad in red waistcoats, blue jackets and small clothes of skin of yellowish homespun cloth. Skin sandals are bound to their feet with cords that interlace each other up the leg as far as the knee, and over all is worn a long brown or blue cloak, with a short cape buckled closely round the neck. Sometimes, but rarely, this cloak is of a deep red with a scalloped cape."
