(By The Watchman)

Passage of the Provincial Income Tax Bill was the highlight of the week in the Legislature. The second reading of the bill was productive of keen debate and the Opposition sought strenuously to obtain from the government financial data as to the provincial debt which would perhaps convey some reason, they said, why a provincial tax was necessary. Premier Hepburn, in reply, said the budget would give all the necessary information "and my honourable friends across the way may not like it but the people of the province will."

A feature of the vote on second reading of the bill was the support given the government by Farquhar Oliver, U.F.O. member for South Grey. A brilliant speaker and regarded as a most promising though lethargic member, Mr. Oliver, in the course of a brief address, voiced his support of the measure, saying he accepted the claim of the government that the tax was necessary to balance the budget, peg the debt indicator and maintain public services. Mr. Oliver referred to the charge of Conservatives that the Income Tax would, for the first time in the history of the province, compel farmers to pay a tax on the revenue from their farms. He said he hoped the day would come when many farmers and small wage-earners would be in a position to contribute to an income tax.

The proceedings in the House were enlivened by an attack on the impartiality of Speaker Norman Hipel who was accused of partisanship in his rulings. A motion by Arthur Ellis, Conservative member for South Ottawa, to adjourn the House to debate the question, was voted down on a standing vote. The Liberals were incensed at the reflection cast on the Speaker and cries of "shame" filled the Chamber.

The fact that the Provincial Income Tax is to be collected by the Federal Department of Income Tax will save the province approximately three-quarters of a million dollars, the premier told the House. It was for this reason that the Ontario Act was similar in almost every clause with the Dominion Act. If the two sets of regulations differed, it would mean two forms would have to be issued, he said.

Ample opportunity was afforded all members to discuss the Bill and it received a thorough airing from both sides of the House. There were several warm exchanges between members of the Ministry and the Opposition, particularly between Opposition Leader George S. Henry and Acting Premier H. C. Nixon. The presence of Premier Hepburn who made his first appearance on Tuesday heartened the Liberal supporters. The Premier, much improved in health, showed characteristic energy in his speech on the debate.

It isn't charity, though, if you give $1 worth of charity and demand $2 worth of gratitude.
