Letters From The People

FAVORS HELPING THE UNEMPLOYED

Editor, The Liberal Sir: I wonder why the Reeve and the Library Board did not consider the unemployed when appointing a Librarian. In these days when it is so hard to find work I think those who are without employment should be given consideration. Moreover I understand the Board is paying a higher salary than some competent applicants tendered.

Our Reeve has always been a good advocate of giving work to the unemployed but he must have suffered a relapse on this occasion, also on the economy count. If a competent person could be secured to do the job for less money the taxpayers should know why they have to pay more.

In these days when employment is so scarce I think those who sit on public bodies and spend public money should do all possible to help those who are not now employed.

TAXPAYER.

Note: Reeve Greene is a member of the Library Board by virtue of his office as Reeve, but is only one of seven members and in making the appointment of Librarian had only one vote the same as any other member. Therefore "Taxpayer" in criticizing the Library Board should direct that criticism to the Board as a whole, rather than directing it to the Reeve in particular. The Reeve is out of town this week and could not be interviewed re the above letter but previous to the appointment of Librarian he expressed opinions very much like those expressed by "Taxpayer" saying that he thought that if possible the position should go to someone not now employed. (Ed.)

ARE MOTOR CASUALTIES INEVITABLE?

Editor, The Liberal Sir:—Living as I do on Yonge Street, Aurora, which is one of the busiest highways in Canada I often think that the whole question of road transportation needs to be reconsidered from a new angle. On the outskirts of Aurora signs may be observed stating that twenty miles an hour is the maximum speed at which motorists may proceed through the town yet it would be quite fair to say that the average speed is at least thirty miles with forty miles or more not uncommon. Now from a safety viewpoint there can be no question that this is most unsatisfactory and yet there are many difficulties involved in strictly enforcing the twenty mile law. In the first place the age old conflict with material interests on the one side and danger to life on the other. If a demand was made that the twenty mile law be enforced arguments would be used against this as follows: motorists would be irritated and as a consequence would neither stop in Aurora overnight nor make purchases at the various business establishments. However this argument is contradictory since those motorists who would be annoyed are obviously those who would pass through rapidly anyhow and if they were compelled to go slower there would be more chance of their stopping. It might be true that if Aurora was to get the name generally as a place where motorists are often "pinched" this might hit trade but the underlying reason why there has been the resentment against some municipalities for arresting motorists for speeding has been because there has been a feeling arrests were based on a desire to obtain revenue both for the town and even sometimes the speed-cop and not primarily to protect life. This resentment would be dissipated if the law was enforced fairly though not too rigidly and only after due warning to the public generally through the newspapers of the province. The fact that one town actually took their speed laws seriously would also have a beneficial effect elsewhere. But there is another more serious objection to enforcing the twenty mile limit. If this was done when traffic was heavy it would make Aurora another bottle-neck and tend to reduce all traffic to that speed even outside the town as heavy traffic always is governed by the slowest drivers and the slowest driving stretches of road. For this reason though I certainly think that something should be done about the excessive speed of many motorists going through the towns arbitrary methods are best avoided. The whole contradictory situation clearly shows that the old idea which has been inherited from the period of horse-drawn traffic that highways should go through the main streets of every town on their route needs to be subjected to careful analysis as it is quite conceivable that it would be better for highways to detour these towns or at least that speed highways should be established between big cities avoiding them and in the latter case speed limits could reasonably be reduced on the other highways where they went through the towns. I would like to close this article on a note of appreciation for the way in which traffic is handled under such difficult and ambiguous circumstances existing at present. J. R. HARRISON, Aurora, Ont.

WEDDING

DAVIES—ECHLIN

Against a background of palms, ferns and standards of summer flowers, a pretty choral wedding had its setting in Thornhill United Church on Saturday afternoon, when Heien Marguerite, only daughter of Mrs. Echlin and the late Mr. Frederick H. Echlin, became the bride of Mr. Sidney Floyd Davies, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Davies, all of Thornhill. Rev. Ernest E. Pugsley conducted the ceremony, and Mrs. Charles J. Harding played the wedding music, and a full choir, of which the groom is organist and leader, and the bride assistant organist, was in attendance to sing the wedding hymns. During the signing of the register Mrs. Kenneth Armstrong sang. Mr. Harold A. Echlin gave his sister in marriage, and she wore a long full gown of white chantilly lace over satin, with a large lace hat with orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and lily-of-the-valley. Misses Edith and Catharine Davies, sisters of the groom, were her attendants. They were gowned alike in pastel shades of taffeta with shirred berets of the same material. The former wore aquamarine and the latter was gowned in orchid. Both carried fan shaped bouquets of yellow roses and yellow gladioli. Little Miss Shirley McDonald, in a yellow frilled organ-dy frock with a bandeau of yellow and orchid flowers in her fair hair, and carrying a nose-gay of yellow and purple flowers, was flower girl. Mr. W. Bruce McDonald attended the groom, and the ushers were Mr. Cecil W. Martin and Mr. Willard F. Simpson. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. Mrs. Echlin received wearing a gown of blue lace bula over pink crepe, with matching hat and corsage of pink roses and bouvardia. Mrs. Davies, mother of the groom, who assisted, wore navy triple sheer with pink. Her corsage was of pink roses and blue cornflowers. Later the bride and groom left for a trip through Eastern Ontario and Quebec. For travelling the bride chose a pink frock in a novelty rough crepe with white accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Davies will live in Newtonbrook.

GIBSON—ANGLE

An interesting wedding was solemnized Saturday afternoon in Richmond Hill United Church when Miss Dorothy Angle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Angle, of Richmond Hill, was united in marriage to Mr. Edgar H. Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Gibson of Hamilton. Delphiniums and roses, against a background of palms and ferns, made an effective setting for the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. C. W. Follett. The wedding music was played by Mr. Adelmo Melecci, and during the signing of the register, Mr. Allan Duncan sang "Still as the Night." The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white satin cut on princess lines with a row of covered buttons down the back of the bodice from neck to waist; long sleeves full at the shoulder, and tight from the elbow coming to points over the hands, and skirt extending into a petal train. She wore a veil of white embroidered tulle held in place with a band of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses. Miss Nan Wyndham of Oakville and the Misses Pauline and Mildred Angle were bridesmaids, frocked alike in pale blue and pink mousseline de sole with large hats of the same shades. They carried briardiff roses. Mr. Arnold Irwin of London, Ont., was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Ivan Ashbury and Mr. Harry Edmison of Toronto. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother welcoming her guests handsomely gowned in apple green chiffon with matching hat, and wearing a corsage of token roses. The groom's mother, who assisted in receiving, wore a mulberry lace gown with hat of the same shade, and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Later Mr. and Mrs. Gibson left for a trip to the New England states, the bride travelling in a navy blue sheer suit with white accessories. On their return they will make their home in Toronto.

People in towns try in vain to imitate New Yorkers. They can wear the right clothes, but they can't look so mad.
