Ottawa, July 21.—Good news for 5,000 borrowers from the Canadian Farm Loan Board was announced by Acting Finance Minister Crear in the reduction of the interest rate to five per cent.

Those who had borrowed prior to October 12th, 1934, on first mortgage, have been paying at the rate of 6½ per cent., and those borrowing between Oct. 12th, 1934, and May 22nd, 1935, paid at the rate of 5½ per cent.

Effective as from July 31st, 1936, all first mortgage loans will bear the rate of five per cent., which has been in effect on loans negotiated since May 22nd, 1935.

Prior to leaving for Europe Finance Minister Dunning completed arrangements for refinancing, at a reduced cost to the Board, of outstanding bonds issued by the Board previous to 1935, and held by the Dominion Government.

Letters From The People

Richmond Hill,
 July 16th, 1936.

Dear Sir:—
 I heartily endorse the statements made by J. R. Harrison of Aurora regarding the sentence imposed upon two lads sixteen years of age. Five years in the penitentiary and ten lashes for a hold-up. Ontario's sense of justice cannot be strengthened by such action by any magistrate.

Political blundering is not free from criticism which permits and endorses the same.

As a life-long Liberal I am free to express my disapproval of both parties in respect to the wide open legal sale of liquor.

I strongly protest against this unjust sentence being carried out. Some politicians deserve severe censure more so than these two boys.
 Henry Moyle.

PUNISHMENT

Editor, The Liberal
 Sir:—

It has been well said that the most important thing about a man is what he really believes since belief is always a basis for action; it is inhabited by a still stronger contrary belief. Thus a boy may believe that he will have a good time by going to a forbidden place but if there is a stronger belief that the consequences will be painful he may not go there. Unfortunately the unpleasant consequences which the boy has learnt to expect are often associated with the knowledge that the parents or other who were its agents were acting under stress of indignation, anger, etc. in which case the idea of punishment crops up. Now it must be clearly understood that this idea of punishment does not exist in nature. If I fell over a cliff and am killed or seriously injured nobody would say that I was punished for falling. It is merely the result of my error and proof of its existence and though I will certainly tend to learn from my experience there is no idea of punishment involved as the same affect happens whether I fell purposely or accidentally and whether I am a "good" or a "bad" man in the same way as the sun shines both on the just and the unjust. This may seem like a mere metaphysical abstraction but it is very important that parents should understand this point clearly and so stress to the child that suffering is the inevitable consequence of error. e.g. a child falls and hurts itself and as falling is continuously associated with the resulting pain it learns to watch carefully. Now some parents, and I have observed them myself, will actually slap a table and say "bad table" when the child hits against it not realising they are developing a false idea of punishment or retaliatory action on the part of the table in the child's mind instead of letting him see that cause and affect are just as certain as two and two making four. Errors or sins as religionists would cause them always tend to produce painful consequences but very often people fail to reason logically from cause to affect or else there are other complex factors confusing the situation. E.g. a man finds that he invariably gets sick after eating a certain article of diet he would be almost certain what was the cause but in a chronic case which was the final result of persistent overeating for years it may be almost impossible to link up cause and affect in the patient's mind, and he may even wonder why providence has treated him so unfairly or else speculate as to which particular malicious germ is responsible. This false idea of punishment has led people to ascribe human limitations to the Deity and to speak of God getting angry, being jealous, etc. not realising that they deny the Deity when they attempt any limitation. We can be thankful that religion generally has abandoned vain discussions and arguments over the incomprehensible as many people who took up positions too strongly on one side or the other of this imaginary fence finally landed in the insane asylum. After all it is more important to know why anger is wrong and also the psychological method of overcoming it than just to be told it is wrong and that we will be punished for it in the hereafter.

BLASPHEMY

"Swear not at all." It is easier to forgive the oath uttered in anger or vexation than the unprovoked vulgarity of the careless and the vicious. To keep one's self-respect and gain and retain the respect of others, this matter of clean speaking is of first importance. Don't allow your reputation to be placed in jeopardy by any coarse tendencies.—Hamilton Spectator.
