CAPITOL THEATRE
 DESCENDANTS OF EARLY-DAY DONS SEND IN FACTS
 Studio Besieged with Information About Joaquin Murrieta
 COULDN'T USE IT ALL

California descendants of the early-day Dons virtually flooded the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios with legends of Joaquin Murrieta, picturesque bandit and patriot, when that studio announced plans to film "Robin Hood of El Dorado," a story based on Joaquin's life. The feature, starring Warner Baxter, opens tonight, (Thursday) at the Capitol Theatre. One of the most dramatic real-life stories came to William Wellman, director, from M. J. Olivas, a studio policeman, who told of an encounter his grandfather had with Murrieta in 1852 at Ventura, California. It was Murrieta's last "big job," and the one that brought about his end. "My grandfather," said Olivas, "was Raimundo Olivas. In 1852 he sold a herd of cattle for $75,000. The transaction was witnessed by a silk peddler, who was a spy of Murrieta's. That night the house was attacked, the gold taken by Murrieta, and the house gutted of diamonds. Earrings were torn from my grandmother's ears as she tried to protect my father, then a boy, from the bandits. "The rangers immediately took Murrieta's trial. In his haste he was forced to bury the treasure. Soon afterward he was killed—or at least disappeared from California. The treasure was lost forever. "The Spanish have a legend that a mysterious light glows at night about hidden treasure. And there is a story that years later, on a night of terrific storm, a rancher riding through the mountains saw this glow coming from the ground. As he hesitated, undecided, a horseman brushed past in the darkness and dismounted at the light. The rancher fled. A few days later he returned and found the earth disarranged and the marks of a horse and a man in the wet ground. Our people always believed it was Murrieta, returning for the treasure vanishing into Mexico." The studio was unable to use even a fraction of the hundreds of stories told by old Californians, but many were incorporated into the picture.

Abolish County Councils
 MUNICIPAL UNIT URGED
 Plan of Sterilization of Imbecile Children and Tax on Hydro Before Association

Sterilization of moronic and imbecile children.
 Taxation of hydro.
 Reduction of truck and trailer tonnage.
 Abolition of County Councils, and Payment of all relief costs by the federal government are the principal proposals which will be made by delegates to the 38th annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association, Sept. 2, 3 and 4.
 The City of Ottawa contends that municipalities are not responsible for unemployment, that it is a national and that the Dominion Government should assume the full cost of relief.
 Proper protection for employees transferring large sums of money is also proposed in a resolution from Ottawa.
 Since the Ontario Government collects income taxes and subsidizes local municipalities from this fund, the township of South Dorchester contends that the subsidy should be pooled and distributed to the municipalities according to their local assessments.

Apartment Doors
 All entrance-exit doors of apartment houses should open outward, a resolution from the City of London contends.
 Increase in the daily cost to municipalities for indigent convalescent patients from 90 cents to $1.25 per day is protested in a City of Windsor resolution.
 Only persons who are property owners should be authorized to qualify for office in municipal councils and school boards, a County of Elgin motion says. At present tenants can qualify.
 Elgin County also contends "That serious consideration should be given to the sterilization of moronic and imbecile children who are found in shelters and other institutions."
 Considerable discussion is promised on the suggestion emanating also from Elgin that municipal councils should be empowered to refer to the Ontario Municipal Board any requisition from a school board which is deemed to be excessive.

Tax on Hydro
 The City of Niagara Falls and the Township of Stamford are demanding again that the Ontario Hydro be required to pay taxes on the same basis as if hydro were privately owned. Many municipalities however would be glad to have them tax free.
 Bonding of trustees and depositors of securities is asked by Stamford and Prescott wants the M.O.H. to pass on all indigents before admission of hospital.
 Prescott presents a resolution to the effect that since 90 per cent. of municipal expenditures are now controlled by bodies other than the council, the council should have complete control of municipal finances.

Guests of Dr. Bruce
 Speakers at the three-day convention include: Hon. H. A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor; H. L. Cummings, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs; R. E. Knowles, Jr., who will speak on "Income Taxation and Succession Duties"; Controller Ralph C. Day, who will discuss "City Relief" and George Hurst of the Toronto Assessment Department, President of the Association. On September 3rd the delegates will be guests of the Lieutenant-Governor at luncheon at Government House and in the evening they will witness the spectacle in front of the grandstand at the Exhibition as guests of the city.
 Councillor H. D. Logan of Lindsay, is asking "that the Municipal Act be amended to provide that a member of a municipal council shall not be disqualified from sitting or voting in such council because of his selling goods to a Welfare Board of Relief Committee of the municipality, where all or a part of the cost of such relief is paid by the provincial or federal government."

To dedicate the magnificent new bandshell at the Canadian National Exhibition this year the management has engaged the Kneller Hall band from the Royal Military School of Music at Twickenham, England. A signal honor has been conferred on this organization inasmuch as that it is the first band to be engaged twice within a period of two years. It was at the "Ex" in 1934. Kneller Hall band is one of the embryo conductors many of whom are organists, vocalists, composers and masters of numerous instruments.

Leader For Seventeen Years
 Prime Minister Has Established Enviable Record For Public Service

On August 7, 1919, Mr. Mackenzie King became leader of the Liberal party in Canada. He was chosen leader in a popular convention held in Ottawa, and attended by delegates from every province in the Dominion; and for seventeen years he has maintained his leadership without a break. For nine years, from 1921 to 1930, Mackenzie King was prime minister in the first Liberal government since the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.
 Now, after seventeen years as active head of the Liberal party, Mr. King is Prime Minister again.
 To hold the leadership of a political party for 17 years in a period of world change and unrest constitutes something of a record. Mr. King is the only leader in the British Commonwealth, if not in the entire world, who has remained at the head of a political party for that length of time. The only other leader who approaches Mr. King's record is Premier J. D. Hertzog, of South Africa. In the case of Mr. Hertzog, however, the party changed. Coalition of the Nationalist group, headed by Mr. Hertzog, with the South African party formed the United Party which the South African Premier now heads.
 Mr. King starts on his 18th year of leadership in good health. He will leave next month at the head of Canada's delegation to the meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations in Geneva.

Fitting Comment
 In its issue of Saturday, August 8, the Toronto Daily Star, which did much to present Mr. Mackenzie King to the people of Canada in the early months of 1919, as a prospective leader of the Liberal party, paid him the following editorial tribute under the caption: An Honorable Career: "Yesterday was the seventeenth anniversary of the selection of Mr. Mackenzie King as leader of the national Liberal party. During the intervening period Mr. King has been prime minister in three periods, serving in that capacity for nearly ten years. It is 28 years since he first entered parliament amid predictions that the day would come when he would reach the highest honors in political life.
 Mr. King has deserved the success that has come to him. He has adhered to the principles that he first espoused. Never has he lost confidence that the nation would come to his point of view. He has pursued a consistent, undeviating course and the country at no time has been in any doubt about what might be expected of him. His achievements have enhanced the prestige of the Dominion. Nowhere is he more highly regarded than in Britain and the United States. With the republic he recently completed a favorable trade treaty and within a few months he is likely to reach a similar accord with the mother country. Not the least of his merits is his success in improving the amenities observed between the two great political parties.
 A shrewd, if cautious, party leader, but one who has been ever prepared to stake all on a great issue, Mr. King has lived up to the highest traditions of public life and kept his name unsullied. Canadians, irrespective of their political affiliations, are thankful that he has been spared to participate so long and creditably in affairs of state."
 The Ottawa Citizen also paid tribute to the Liberal Chief, under the caption "Prime Minister's Fine Record." It said, in part:—
 Premier Mackenzie King's name will surely be bracketed with the most illustrious of Liberals in Canadian politics. It is a great record to have been leader of the Liberal party for seventeen years. He observed this anniversary, with characteristic modesty, by staying quietly at home in the country last Friday.

No other political party in any country at the present time has been so long served without a break in leadership. The Canadian leader's record is also unique in having held office as Prime Minister during nine years of this period. With the whole world in ferment, with political democracy in jeopardy everywhere, with some nations being shepherd into dictatorship while others swing into revolution, Canada has reason to feel thankful for wise guidance.
 Irrespective of party, the Canadian people may well unite in continuing to repose confidence in the man at the helm of the Canadian ship of state, William Lyon Mackenzie King. It should be the wish of every Canadian that he may long continue to give this Dominion safe Liberal leadership, ever seeking to go forward along the path of political democracy, and economic democracy, through this tremendous period of transition in the world's social structure."
