

Touching
Two members of a club began to exchange confidences. 'Do you know,' said the young man, 'my wife is absent on a pleasure cruise, and she writes me from every port she touches.'
'You're lucky,' replied the older man. 'My wife is also on a pleasure cruise, but she touches me from every port she calls at.'

A Korean won the marathon. It may not prove anything, but the down-trodden races seem fastest on their feet.

BETTE DAVIS HAS FILM GOWN MADE OF HANDKERCHIEFS

One of the most interesting, and at the same time unusually beautiful evening gowns to come out of Hollywood in a long time was designed by Orry-Kelly, First National Stylist, for Bette Davis to wear in "The Golden Arrow," which comes to the Capitol theatre on Monday.

It is made out of handkerchiefs. Using four large silk kerchiefs of black silk crepe with a printed design in pink and white, the designer evolved a formal dress featuring the pencil silhouette, short "fishtail" train, and huge butterfly drapes depending from the shoulders at the back.

The handkerchiefs make the drape and the train with the printed borders of the last two climbing up the sides of the gown, while the black backgrounds were carefully matched in crepe to finish the body of the dress.

A prediction that handkerchief frocks will become a fad for spring sports and evening wear also has been made by Orry-Kelly, since the idea also is adaptable for use on collars, cuffs, godets, bows and inset pleats. A South Sea print already has been used for informal party and sports wear, but the Bette Davis formal is the first to show handkerchiefs for evening wear.

"The Golden Arrow" is a rollicking comedy romance by the famous English playwright, Michael Arlen. Besides Miss Davis, who won the 1935 award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the cast includes George Brent, Eugene Pallette, Dick Foran, Carol Hughes, Catharine Doucet and Craig Reynolds.

The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green from the screen play by Charles Kenyon.

THE SLIPPERY STANE

Wade canny thro' this waery wor!
An' pick your steps wi' care;
Ne'er wi' your neebors quarrel,
But aye do what is fair.
Folks fa' an' never rise again,
Wha' never fell before,
For ther's aye a muckle slippy stane
At ilka body's door.
Gin your neebor chance to slip,
Ye mauna pass him by,
But lend a hand and help him up,
Dinna let him lie.
The case may sometime be your ain,
Tho' ye hae wealth in store,
For ther's aye a muckle slippy stane
At ilka body's door.
There's a slippy stane where'er ye gang,
At palace, cot or ha'
An' ye maun watch and no gang wrang
Or ower them you may fa'.
For emperors an' kings hae fa-en
An' nobles mony s score,
For ther's aye a muckle slippy stane
At ilka body's door.

MacMurchy - Foliott

The United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday at 3.30 p.m. when Lillian Mae Foliott, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Foliott, was united in marriage to Mr. Donald Reed MacMurchy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacMurchy of Hillsburg.

The church looked beautiful decorated with gladioli, ferns, palms, late autumn flowers and leaves. Preceding the bride the choir entered singing the professional hymn "O Father, All Creating" with Mr. L. K. Farr of Aurora, cousin of the bride, at the organ.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, fashioned leg of mutton sleeves, the skirt flaring into a medium train and her mother's wedding veil held in place by orange blossoms and carried ophelia roses and lily-of-the-valley entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. The bridesmaids, Misses Louise and Florence Foliott, sisters of the bride, wore pink and green taffeta gowns of the same design, with matching rosette caps with tulle crowns and brims and shoes and gloves and carried bouquets of late autumn flowers.

Little Ruth Foliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Foliott wore a period frock of frilled white organdy and carried a colonial nosegay. Mr. N. MacMurchy was his brother's best man. The ushers were Mr. Harold Foliott, brother of the bride and Dr. Cullen of Acton, brother-in-law of the groom.

During the signing of the register Miss Arleane Carson, Miss Mildred Foliott and Miss Ruth Bateson sang "O Perfect Love." The Ceremony was conducted by Rev. Douglas Davis.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, her mother receiving in black chiffon velvet with corsage of Talisman Rosebuds. The groom's mother assisted wearing wine lace and georgette with Johanna Hill rose corsage.

The bride's going away costume was a brown ensemble with matching accessories. After a honeymoon in Philadelphia they will reside on the groom's farm at Hillsburg.

The old-fashioned candidate was the fellow who threw his hat into the ring instead of hurling his voice into a microphone.
